MAINE NIGHT

Maine Night has come and gone and is recorded as an even greater success than those that preceded it. Everyone enjoyed the occasion because almost everyone was there. At any rate everyone who could scrape any relations to, or claims on the University within a radius of one hundred miles put in an appearance, caught the spirit of enthusiasm and had a good time. The program in the chapel was the best ever held and anyone in the audience who had never before understood what Maine Spirit was, went away satisfied.

After the program came dancing in the gymnasium and although the floor was a bit crowded, it made things all the merrier and everyone enjoyed the bumps and jostles. Pullen furnished the music and was at his best.

Of the program in the chapel much might be said. In general one was struck with the forcible address and personal magnetism of Coach McCoy, the creditable address of Harris from the Law School and the fine exhibition of the band on its first public appearance before the students. We should not overlook the address of Emery who sent a thrill of enthusiasm through the hall, nor the modesty of Capt. Bennett.

Judge Parker carried the house and demonstrated the immortality of the athlete. He stretched the truth a bit when he remarked that he could not make a speech for he was one of the most forceful men on the program.

The committee in charge should be complimented for their taste in arrangement. Songs, cheers, music, and rousing speeches were worked in together in a way that made Maine Night a huge success.

MAINE 16, NEW HAMPSHIRE 0

The game with New Hampshire on October 25 was a source of keen satisfaction to all Maine sympathizers who saw it. The score of 16 to 0 does not show how greatly our team defeated the men from New Hampshire.

The game clearly demonstrated that the varsity has improved greatly since the Colby game. Almost all of New Hampshire's gains were made on trick passes and open plays. When the visitors' backs tried Maine's line, they were met by a stone wall defense and were thrown back with no gain and often with a loss.

Maine had a great advantage in weight, her average of 170 pounds being 15 pounds heavier than the New Hampshire team. The visitors were not only outweighed, but they never got the jump on Maine and played at a disadvantage through the game. In the first half Maine started off with a gait like a whirlwind and the visitors were dumbfounded. A plunge through the right side for five yards, a dash around the left end for 30 more, a hole in center for eight and the people on the sidelines began wondering what the final score would be. Maine had the ball down the whole length of the field before she gave New Hampshire a chance to realize what was happening. After the first touchdown the playing slowed up a bit but it showed that Maine was capable of a speed that surprised the spectators. In her punting Maine had the best of the bargain and Quint, who was called upon for this work handled the punting well. He got one off from position in the first half for 35 yards after Maine had been penalized five yards and repeated it once in the second under the same conditions. Miner punted twice from the 25-yard line after New Hampshire had punted over the goal line, netting 80 yards.

In the line the men showed some improvement although there appeared to be one or two weak spots. Burleigh at left end was off color and not up to his usual game. New Hampshire made some long gains around the end and had it not been for some brilliant work in bringing down the runner out of a bunch of interference, by Miner, two touchdowns would have been credited to the visitors. Ray at right guard was not as strong as was expected although he played well for the experience that he has had. The line as a whole played well; the men were quick in starting and strong on the defense. It will take a strong offense to make any consistent gains through it if there are no slip-ups before the big games.

Of the playing of the men there is much that might be said. Capt. Bennett who went in at his old position at right tackle for part of the first half showed that he has not lost anything in form during his layoff. He handled his man without difficulty and plowed up some big holes when called back. Smith who succeeded him played the best game that he has shown this season. His offensive work was particularly strong and he was up and doing throughout the game. His tackling behind the line was noticeable as in the Colby game. Moore will make one of the best centers that Maine has ever had before he quits the game. On the right end Talbot played a strong and at times brilliant game. His wing was hammered whenever New Hampshire had the ball but they did not gain an aggregate over two or three yards in the entire game.

Among the backs there was great competition on the Maine side. Elliott went in first at quarterback and played a strong game handling the team in a veteran manner. He showed great improvement in his work and is developing into a fast quarterback. Miner who succeeded him near the close of the first half went in with a do or die spirit and made a strong showing. His tackling under hard circumstances saved Maine from being scored on. He ran the team well although he lacks much of the snap that Elliott puts into the work. Of the fullbacks Farwell is apparently the comer. He played hard and made good on both offensive and defensive. He is rather a better man on the defensive but he carries the ball well and seldom fails to make his distance. Weymouth and Forbes were both given a try-out and they filled the position in a way that leaves a choice a difficult matter. Forbes is strong on defensive work and Weymouth is a bull at hitting the line.

Elliott and Quint are undoubtedly first choice from the list of half backs and both were there with the goods. Quint used fine judgment in picking holes in the New Hampshire line and added several yards in the total that might have been lost by a halfback with less ginger. Chase, who took his place, has come to the front with a rush in the past two weeks and is in good order for 'varsity material. Swift on the other side made good and the team did not weaken when he replaced Higgins.

Of the New Hampshire team there were several stars and several weak spots. The line with one or two exceptions was weak. The ends were strong and they help out a fast set of backs.

Ingham, who was in at left tackle the greater part of the game, was the strength of the line and made some good gains carrying the ball. Wilkins at left half was one of the fastest men that have been sent around Maine's ends.

The day was ideal for football although there was a small attendance at the game. The game itself was a clean exhibition, with few delays. The penalties were all inflicted on Maine and the visitors put up a hard, clean exhibition.

The game in detail:

New Hampshire kicked to Higgins who ran the ball in from the five to the 25-yard line. Quint tried a cross buck for five and a lunge through guard for eight. Higgins then cleared the left end for thirty yards. With the exception of one yard on a quarterback run by Elliott the backs carried the ball by a combination of line and skin tackle plays the length of the field for the first touchdown. Moore kicked the goal from a punt out.

New Hampshire chose to receive the kick and Moore put it so Stockwell who ran it in from the five to the 23-yard line. The halves tried both ends with no gain and Stockwell dropped back for a punt. The ball rolled along the ground on the grass and went to Maine inside the three-yard line. Farwell was sent over the line in a straight play through center. The ball hit the goal post on the kick and fell on the outside. New Hampshire chose to kick and Talbot gathered in the ball carrying it back from the 15 to the 30-yard line.

The march down the field then started and the backs in succession carried it from five to ten yards at a rush. Elliott got clear for one-quarter back run of five yards. Farwell took the ball over for the third touchdown. Moore failed to kick the goal. On the kick-off Miner ran the ball back from the 14 to the 30-yard line and on the next play Maine was penalized five yards for off-side work. The backs failed to make up the setback and Quint punted 35 yards to Bachelder. New Hampshire was then given five yards for holding in the Maine post on the the kick and fell on the outside, of left tackle. Stockwell hurdled the line for a good gain and the next play gave them first down. Three downs more gave New Hampshire her distance and the half ended with the ball in her possession on Maine's 45-yard line.

SECOND HALF

Moore kicked to the ten-yard line and Cone brought it back ten. After two downs, a punt to Miner gave Maine the ball. Maine was penalized five yards for off-side playing and Quint punted down into New Hampshire territory. On the next play Wilkins behind excellent interference went around Burleigh for 55 yards, making the longest run of the day. He was brought down in a pretty tackle by Miner. New Hampshire made first down once and then punted, the ball going behind Maine's goal line. Miner punted from the 25-yard line and New Hampshire ran it back 20 yards. Bachelder got around the right end for 30 yards and then Ingham tried a goal from the field that went wide. On the kick out from the 25-yard line Miner got it off for 40 yards. New Hampshire was forced to punt and Maine zigzagged the ball down to her 30-yard line where she lost it on an attempt to regain ground lost on a penalty. New Hampshire made first down once and the half ended with it in her possession on her own 40-yard line. The summary:

It is early yet but the Bowdoin game has been on the minds of Maine men for some time already. The question has been repeatedly asked, "Are we to have a special train over to Brunswick?" It only indicates the interest in that game and the special train should come as an assured fact. It's the only chance for one this fall and it happens to be available for the right game. Everyone wants to see the Bowdoin game and all that will be necessary for the success of a "special" is for the right person to start the movement. To repeat, it is early yet, but we want to be sure of that train and the man whom we formerly depended upon for our special trains is not here. This is the first opportunity for his successor and may he prove as capable.

Within the last two or three years the students have come to regard the college orchestra as an essential part of the musical life of the University. This has been brought about by the development of the orchestra itself. In the last year or two the orchestra has been brought up to a standard where it compares favorably with any of the available orchestras outside the University. The students recognized this fact last year and the University orchestra received a larger share of the work here than ever in previous years.

But to come back to the subject, the orchestra this year bears every indication of being the finest we have ever had and it behooves the students in general, to make it worth while for the leaders and members of the orchestra to bring the work up to the highest standard possible.

We have a reputation for holding a high standard in our musical work and here is a department which, if given encouragement, will be among the best of our musical organizations. It is hard to appeal to a man's college spirit in the matter of music for a dance unless you feel sure that the college orchestra will give the satisfaction that the outside orchestra is capable of. The only thing that remains is for the students to give their fellow students a fair trial and the benefit of the doubt for encouragement.

LOCALS

Miss Alice B. Farnsworth, ex-'08, and Miss Mary L. Knight are visiting friends at the University.

Monday a rule was laid down before the football squad compelling the members to be off the street by ten o'clock. The penalty for violating the rule is loss of suits.

The University library recently received a valuable gift in the form of Massachusetts and early Maine acts and resolves. The donor was Mr. J. H. Winchester of Corinna.

Prof. Gordon E. Tower is planning to have a series of practical talks on forestry by lumber operators for the benefit of the forestry students. He is also planning a trip to the lumber camps.

The faculty members in attendance at the Maine Association of Colleges and Preparatory Schools were Pres. Fellows, Dean Hart, Dean Stevens and Profs. Estabrooke, Drew, Hurd, Chase and Colvin.

The first number of the University bulletin is in press. This number is especially designed to give information to alumni in regards to the new members of the faculty and general condition of the University.

The subject for the debate Thursday evening is the following: Resolved, That too much Time is given to Athletics in Our Colleges and Universities. Speakers: Affirmative — Hews '06, Milliken '09; Negative — Simmonds '09, Patterson '09.

For special chapel music during the past week, Prof. Lentz played a 'cello solo on Wednesday, and the college choir gave special music on Friday morning. The playing of Prof. Lentz deserves the highest praise, for he showed that he is a master of his instrument, and his technique is perfect.

The annual initiation of the Sigma Beta Pi fraternity of the University of Maine School of Law was held on Wednesday night in the chapter's rooms in the Bass block on Hammond street. The initiates were: E. Burleigh David-

THE CAMPUS BOARD

The CAMPUS board is undergoing considerable change this fall and the staff that finishes the year promises to be changed largely from that which started the work last spring. Resignations have been received from three members of the old board and the changing of the issue to a weekly has necessitated a larger force of associate editors. Resignations have been received from Assistant Editor L. R. Colcord, and associate editors, F. O. Stevens and M. R. Lovett. Their loss will cripple the board for a time but there is a good prospect that some strong men can be developed to fill the positions. The election of four new men to the Board is necessary in the near future and they will be chosen from a long list of candidates that are now trying for the positions. An assistant editor who is the logical successor of the present editor will have to be chosen to fill the position vacated by L. R. Colcord. There are several good men available and it is a question of trying them out to secure the most capable man. The men who have been doing the most promising work are the following: A. R. Lord, '07, W. L. Emerson, '09, A. G. Durgin '08, P. A. Drew, '08, J. T. Kendregan, '08, W. D. Trask, '08, H. G. Philbrook, '07, J. H. Mason, '09, W. B. Fogler, '08, T. A. Malloy, '07, E. J. Wilson, '07, H. M. Ellis, '08, C. E. Davis, '07, H. Gardner, '09, H. P. Marsh, '09, E. Milliken, '09.

The fact is being made more and more apparent every day, that the popularity of the game of American football is slowly but surely on the wane. It is evident that the athletic authorities at Harvard are taking the matter seriously, for they have arranged with two crack Canadian rugby teams to give an exhibition on the gridiron at Soldiers Field, on Nov. 11, when the Harvard eleven is playing Pennsylvania at Philadelphia.

UNIVERSITY ORCHESTRA

The candidates for the University orchestra have been at work for some time with very encouraging results. Even at this early day it is apparent that there is some unusual talent available. Most of it is among the new men with a bright promise for the future. The rehearsals have not accomplished much more than to get the men together and show up the ability of the individuals but things will move rapidly from now on. New music will be taken up at once and in a short time the orchestra will be open to engagements.

Leader Plummer has made the statement that he expects it to be the finest orchestra the University has ever had and worthy of the hearty support of the students.

Among the candidates are the following:

Violins—Blossom, '09, E. C. Coleman, '08, Beale, '09, F. P. Holbrooke, '07, G. H. Hill, '06.

R. S. Seabury, Clarinet; H. B. Smith, '08, Base; T. F. Bye, '07, Piano; R. Smith, '07, Cornet; A. B. Plummer, '07, Cornet; C. H. Lekberg, '07, Drum; Maxwell, Cello.

IVY DAY OFFICERS

At a meeting of the Junior class a new policy of selecting officers for the various duties of Ivy Day was adopted. This plan provides that a committee formed by one Junior from each fraternity and a representative for each eight non-fraternity members of the class shall meet, and nominate candidates for the class to vote on. It is provided that the president of the class shall act as chairman of this committee without voting power, and that at least two candidates for each office shall be submitted to the class for choice.

This plan, if successfully carried out, ought to place the best man in each office and the final result will be closely watched by the University at large as a better method of selecting all class officers.

THE TUFTS GAME

The Tufts game is the next thing before us and the question is naturally asked, "How do we stand?" As a rule we do not get the line on the strength of Tufts before we meet her that we do on our neighbor colleges in the state, and the question is naturally one uppermost with those who do not follow the game outside the state closely.

The situation is this; we have got one of our hardest propositions in Tufts and it will take the best there is in the team to win. Tufts was defeated last year by a score of 28-0 but this is not the same Tufts nor the same game this year would not win from the new Tufts. That Tufts defeated Bowdoin easily is not the criterion for we did not regard Bowdoin as very formidable and Tufts naturally had things much her own way, but her record this fall has been almost brilliant and those who have followed the game know that Tufts has one of the best teams in her history.

We are going down there to win and it may mean the hardest task we have had to accomplish. The Saturday following comes the Bowdoin game and this means that two hard games are confronting the team in succession. It means that it will be necessary to take a big squad of men down to Medford and by replacing the exhausted ones save the team from being crippled and exhausted when it faces Bowdoin the Saturday following. It is the only conclusion. If we are to win both games we will have to have plenty of substitutes to make the work easier next Saturday. That means that if the athletic association can not find a way to do it some other means will have to be devised for every man in college has decided that that team has got to wind up the season with two good fair victories if there is any way possible.

It has been stated by the football coaches at Yale, that in the recent game with West Point, the weakest place in Yale's line was through Capt. Shelvin at right tackle.

THE FIRST ASSEMBLY

The assembly committee at a recent meeting decided several matters relating to the first assembly which have been unsettled up to the present. The price of the season tickets is to be two dollars and the committee has devised a scheme by which the dances can be run an hour later without additional charge to the ticket holders. The University orchestra is to furnish the music for the first assembly which is to be held Dec. 15. Tickets will be on sale in a few days.

CURRENT ARTICLES

In the November issue of "The Outing" Caspar Whitney has taken up the present football situation in the country, in an editorial that is well worth reading. He has graphically represented the present condition of amateur athletics in the colleges and proposes an honor system as a remedy, which if feasible, is certainly desirable. He further criticises strongly the inaction of the Football Rules Committee and "its failure to recognize the popular and intelligent demand for some revision of the existing football rules."

The article on "The Spirit of School and College Sport" in the November issue of The Century by Ralph D. Paine is attracting an unusual amount of comment as it justly deserves. It covers the present football situation in a very able and interesting manner. The article is not one that is dropped until it has been read through.

There was not a player injured in the Pennsylvania-Carlisle game.

Two new instructors at the Princeton University were mistaken by some Sophomores for Freshmen. When they insisted upon their right to wear derby hats, the Sophomores took it upon themselves to remove them. In consequence, eight of the Sophomores are suspended for one month.

ALPHA PARTY.

An enjoyable house party was given at the Alpha Tau Omega House last Tuesday evening. The programme for the evening was typical of an old fashioned Halloween Party. The house was tastefully decorated with Jack-o'-Lanterns and other symbols of the eve before All Saints' Day. Refreshments fitting the occasion were served. Several musical selections, readings, and the old time Hallowe'en games afforded a most enjoyable evening to the friends and members of the chapter.

Yale still continues to hold the honor of not having had her goal line crossed.

The celebration of the Tufts victory over Bowdoin cost a Medford farmer his barn and two tons of hay.

The star quarterback of the strong Boston English High football eleven, weighs just ninety-eight pounds.

"News was received in Bangor on Saturday of the death on Friday, Oct. 27, in Denver, Colo., of Frank E. Kidder, formerly of this city at the age of forty-six years. He was born in Bangor on Nov. 3, 1859, the son of Bradley P. and Victoria Kidder. He attended the public schools and after one year at the High School, entered the Maine State College at Orono in his 15th year where he graduated in June 1879, with the degree of Bachelor of Civil Engineering. Three years later he received the full degree of Civil Engineer—Bangor Commercial.

He attended Cornell and the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, taking special courses in architecture. He has devoted his life to architecture and rose very rapidly to the very top of his profession. He was a recognized authority on building and architecture, and his opinion was considered the best that could be procured. Many of his writings have appeared in the technical journals of this country and his handbook for architects, structural engineers, builders and draftsmen; "Architects' and Builders' Pocket-book" is used by architects and builders everywhere. For the past twenty years Mr. Kidder has been a consulting engineer and lived for the most of the time in Denver, Colo., where he was prominently identified with the building up of the city.

Mr. Kidder married in 1882, Miss Kate E. Newhall of Bangor, who survives him. They had three children all of whom are living. His mother, Mrs. Bradley P. Kidder, and his sister, Mrs. Leslie W. Cutter of Bangor, will have the sympathy of many friends in their great loss. Mrs. Cutter is the wife of L. W. Cutter a graduate of the University of Maine in the class of 1884.
