Hutchinson nominated as new president of UMaine

Frederick Hutchinson, nominee for the presidency of the University of Maine.

By Michelle Hikel
Staff Writer

The man Maine knows may be coming back to Orono.

University of Maine presidential candidate Frederick Hutchinson has been nominated for the university's top administrative position by Chancellor Robert Woodbury, a recommendation to be approved at the Board of Trustees Feb. 24 meeting.

"Fred Hutchinson would make a superb president for any campus in America."

"He has a splendid record of research and scholarship, he has been a skilled and effective manager at all levels of the academic enterprise," Woodbury said in a prepared statement issued from his office Friday afternoon.

Woodbury said all four candidates recommended by the Presidential Search Committee, were "outstanding academic administrators" but it was Hutchinson's past experience in Maine that made the difference.

"For Orono, however, Fred is all that and more: he is uniquely prepared to lead the University of Maine, and I could not be more delighted to recommend him to the Trustees," he said.

Hutchinson currently serves as Senior Vice-President for Academic Affairs and Provost of Ohio State University, a position he has held for two years at a salary of $152,000.

Ohio State President Gordon Gee said Hutchinson's tenure at the nation's largest land-grant university has been impressive.

"The University of Maine has chosen in Fred Hutchinson an experienced leader who will provide both vision and direction in these challenging times for higher education."

"We at Ohio State—and no one more than I—will miss Fred very much. He has earned the respect and affection of the whole university community," Gee said in a prepared statement issued Friday.

Dennis Cox, professor of music and faculty representative to the Presidential Search Committee, visited the Ohio campus last Monday and Tuesday to "confirm all we've heard about Fred Hutchinson."

New OCB president and vp start work on the future

By Beverly A. Gabe
Staff Writer

As paint dripped down their arms, the new president and vice president of The Off-Campus Board organized the affairs of the Ram's Horn and tried to get a handle on the future of their office.

Saturday, Christine Smeriglio and Ethan Maycomber, president and vice president of OCB, worked on the finishing touches to the Ram's Horn. They also discussed upcoming events being sponsored by OCB, such as Bumstock and a benefit concert for H.O.M.E., a group which works to fight homelessness in Maine, to be held at the Orono on Friday, Feb. 21.

Smeriglio said OCB, in cooperation with The Maine Peace Action Committee (MPAC), will sponsor the concert to help a homeless shelter project in Ellsworth. Admission is $3 to see The Kingsmen Ridge Runners, a local bluegrass group, and Bedrock.

April 25 was the focus of the Bumstock committee's Friday meeting. Currently the group, which is open to everyone, is reviewing demo tapes of the bands who wish to play at the event. The decision about which bands will play and how much money is available is "still floating," Smeriglio said.

"We're not sure how much money we have right now. There are bills coming in that need to be paid and allotments. We have to bring everything up to date," she said.

OCB will need to seek outside sources for additional contributions for Bumstock. Maycomber cited the Comprehensive Fee as a possible benefactor and said a variety of avenues were being explored.

"Dave Carlson (Editor of Huberis and former interim president of OCB) has been knocking on people's doors looking for money for Bumstock," Maycomber said.

Participation is needed in order for Bumstock to be a success. Meetings are held every Friday at 6 p.m. at the Ram's Horn. Maycomber seemed optimistic about the turnout so far.

"We had about 11 people show up, but

◆ Senate candidate

O'Dea to run for State Senate

By Michael Reagan
Staff Writer

State Representative John O'Dea, D-Orono, who represents the University of Maine as part of District 130, will be bidding for a seat in the Maine State Senate this November.

O'Dea announced his candidacy after current Sen. Stephen Bost announced he would not be seeking reelection for the District 11 seat. The district includes Orono and a number of surrounding towns.

One of his main concerns is the increase of local property taxes, which he blames on Governor McKernan.

By making cuts to education and revenue sharing, Maine towns are forced to raise property taxes to make up for the lost revenue, O'Dea said.

"On the one hand, the governor says 'no new taxes,' but municipalities are forced to raise property taxes," he said, "and municipalities aren't able to raise taxes in an equitable manner."

One of the State Senate's functions is to approve of various nominees for various state appointments, including University of Maine's Board of Trustees. O'Dea stressed the importance of having a voice for UMaine in the Senate and said although he thought the BOT was doing well, he thought there was room for improvement.

Bost recently helped pass a bill cutting administrative salaries over $100,000 in the UMaine system by 5 percent, which was unpopular with administrators. The money from the cuts went into need-based tuition for students.

When asked about future relations with the UMaine system, O'Dea said he thought the problem with the administration was over.

"I think the Chancellor and the administration are much more sensitive to the political realities in Augusta and are much more aware of the students' plight," he said.

One of his priorities is to get money back into education, because O'Dea said he believes education is key to helping the economy. He cited the demand for classes at technical colleges as a sign Maine residents are using education and job retraining to find better jobs.

He said he hopes to continue to serve on the Joint Standing Committee on Education and the Joint Standing Committee on Aging, Retirement and Veterans.

Arabs attack Israeli soldiers, kill three

1 EINIBRAHIM, Israel (AP) — Arab attackers armed with axes and knives killed three Israeli soldiers and wounded another at a training camp for immigrant soldiers near the occupied West Bank, the military said Saturday. The assailants escaped, and a huge manhunt was launched.

Officials blamed the overnight attack on either Palestinians or Israeli Arabs. It would mark the first time during the 4-year-old Palestinian uprising that local Arabs raided a military base in Israel proper.

The attack was expected to prompt a public outcry over military preparedness. The military chief of staff, Lt. Gen. Ehud Barak, traveled to the scene by helicopter and called the incident "extremely serious."

Military officials said the assailants stabbed and hacked two of the victims to death around midnight as they slept in their tents. A third soldier was fatally stabbed with a pitchfork when he heard the commotion and ran to help the others, they said.

Army radio quoted residents in the nearby West Bank town of Jenin as saying a claim of responsibility was made by the Black Panthers, a local PLO militia, but radio reports said Islamic fundamentalists were suspected.

◆ Japanese scandal

Man accused of bribery

3 TOKYO (AP) — A businessman charged in an illegal loan scandal accused a fellow suspect of trying to buy the influence of about 130 politicians with huge bribes, a newspaper reported Saturday.

The politicians included top members of Prime Minister Kiichi Miyazawa's party, the Asahi Shimbun said, and could be a serious blow to Miyazawa's 3-month-old administration. It is already reeling from bribery accusations against a former Cabinet member.

The accusation was made by Yasuo Matsuzawa, head of Heiwado Co., a medical supply and real estate conglomerate.

He said Hiroyasu Watanabe, former president of the trucking company Tokyo Sagawa Kyubin, paid hundreds of millions of dollars in bribes to influence Cabinet appointments, according to the newspaper report.

◆ Korean economy

North Korea increases wages, agricultural prices

4 TOKYO (AP) — Communist North Korea announced a rare wage increase. Some workers will see their earnings rise by more than 40 percent.

At the same time, the government announced an increase in government purchase prices for agricultural goods. Both increases are to go into effect next month.

The North's official Korean Central News Agency said the wages of its workers would be raised an average 43.4 percent.

The current average wage was not given, but South Korean government officials say North Korean white-collar workers earn between $26 and $39 a month, compared to an average $678 in South Korea.

◆ Gas shortage

Estonian gas shortage kills tomb's eternal flame

5 MOSCOW (AP) — The eternal flame marking the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier in the former Soviet republic of Estonia has been extinguished because of a gas shortage.

The Russian Information Agency says some Estonian lawmakers have appealed to Russian President Boris Yeltsin for gas, "especially for maintaining the eternal flame."

The report Saturday did not say when the flame was turned off. The monument is in Tallinn, the Estonian capital. Estonia gained independence from the former Soviet Union following the failed hard-line coup last August.

◆ Former Soviet Union

Four republics want separate armies

2 MINSK, Belarus (AP) — Although four former Soviet republics say they will form separate armies, the disagreement on defense issues will not destroy the new commonwealth, the leader of Belarus said Saturday.

Stanislav Shushkevich spoke at a news conference a day after the summit of leaders of the Commonwealth of Independent States, during which several cooperation agreements were signed.

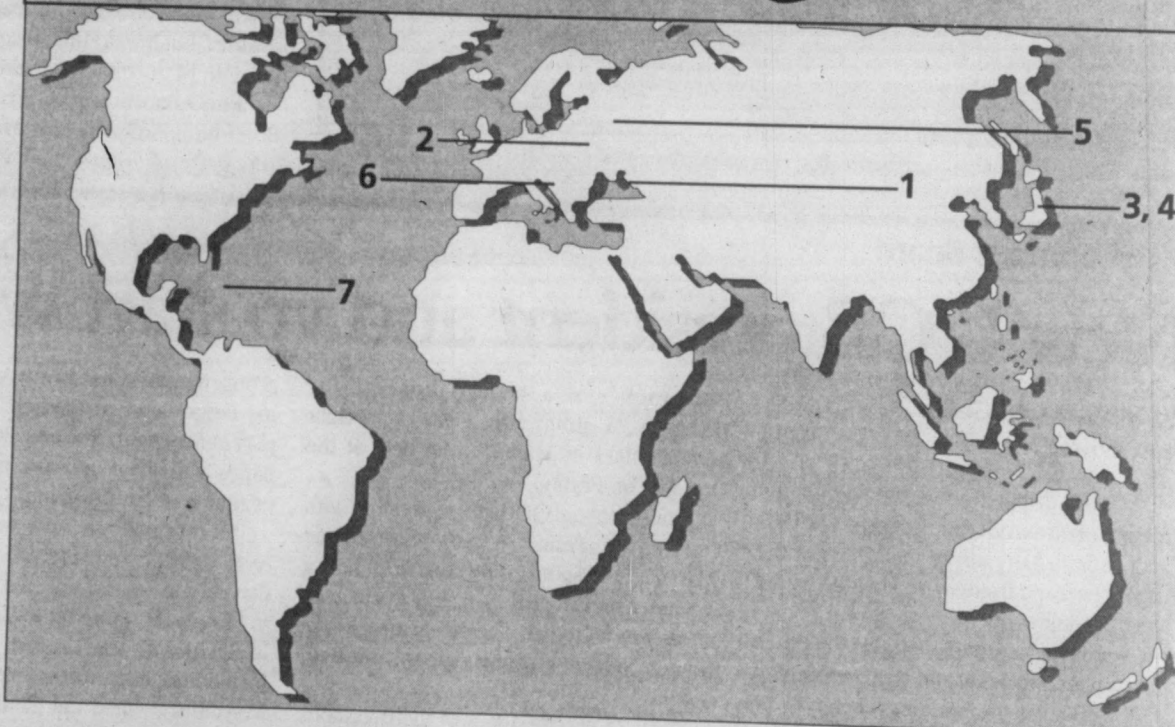

The agreements by the 11 former Soviet republics signaled a determination to settle their disputes within the body, a theme which Shushkevich picked up on Saturday during the news conference.

He said four republics — Ukraine, Moldova, Azerbaijan and Belarus — were clearly not interested in joining in a unified army.

Shushkevich said, however, the four states now were effectively part of a unified military because they don't have their own forces.

None of the agreements Friday dealt with the issue of the former Soviet Union's Black Sea fleet. Russia has agreed to give some of the 300 ships to Ukraine, but the states are bickering on which ships and how many.

◆ Croatian-Serbian conflict

Croatians want Serbs to surrender their control in areas of Croatia

6 ZAGREB, Croatia (AP) — Croatian officials, who have endorsed the deployment of U.N. peacekeepers to their country, were quoted Saturday as saying Croatian control should ultimately be reimposed in areas now held by Serb militants.

Croatian battlefronts were reported generally calm amid preparations at U.N. headquarters in New York to send in 10,000 or more peacekeepers. Croatian officials said federal forces fired at a Croatian-held village about 12 miles east of the Adriatic port of Zadar, and federal machine guns and howitzers briefly targeted Dubrovnik.

There were no reports of casualties. Three Croatian soldiers died in Osijek, 140 mile east of Zagreb, late Friday in federal army mortar fire, said Croatian officials.

The 15-member U.N. Security Council on Friday unanimously approved a resolution calling on Secretary-General Boutros Boutros-Ghali to speed up deployment of peacekeepers and bolster a cease-fire that took hold on Jan. 3.

◆ Human rights

Human rights group complains about Haiti's detention of journalists

7 PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti (AP) — The detention of journalists this week by police in a remote village shows the extent of repression in Haiti, human rights advocates said Saturday.

Activists say human rights abuses have grown since popularly elected President Jean-Bertrand Aristide was overthrown in a coup Sept. 30.

Alan Tomlinson of National Public Radio, Nathaniel Sheppard Jr. of the Chicago Tribune, a two-man Haitian television crew and interpreters were detained on Wednesday afternoon and released the next day. They were returning to their car after discovering the charred remains of 120 houses on a mountainside near the remote northern town of Petit-Bourg du Borgne.

The journalists had been told that a local section chief, or sheriff, Jean-Marie Voltaire, burned the homes because inhabitants refused to pay a "protection" fee and because they supported Aristide. Some of the residents reportedly were killed.

McFerrin and 'Voicestra' blend music at MCA

By Jody Myers
Staff Writer

Bobby McFerrin and his nine-member "Voicestra" wandered on stage at the Maine Center for the Arts Saturday night and blended it all.

They sang blues, jazz, rap, soul, opera, reggae and whatever else came to mind at the moment.

"I wanted to see if singers, through their sound, could affect the body and mind."
—Bobby McFerrin

They sang about social issues and South Africa, and when audience members made suggestions like "sing like a nervous fish," McFerrin and his entourage did that, too.

"It was really intriguing," said University of Maine student and spectator Justin Vreeland. "I have never seen anything like that."

McFerrin, who is often recognized for his 1989 hit single "Don't Worry, Be Happy," performed solo at a half-filled MCA auditorium several years ago.

Saturday night's concert was sold out nearly a month in advance. McFerrin did not sing "Don't Worry Be Happy." Instead, he was promoting his latest album, "Medicine Music."

"I wanted to see if singers, through their sound, could affect the body and mind," Mc-

Ferrin said in a press release.

He said in the same release the title "came to him through improvising" and the album contains the improvisations that "worked out."

During the concert, McFerrin seldom took center stage alone. He often urged Voicestra members to sing solo while he and the others sang harmony.

Sometimes the audience sang along. There were no instruments, just vocals.

Performers' harmonies and gestures meshed in traditional A Cappella fashion, but musical themes varied.

One of the more serious numbers featured singers acting a scene about a grandmother crying on the roof of her house as she watched fire spread across a field toward her.

The woman eventually cried out desperately enough and singlehandedly "turned back the wind." The scene then evolved into a song.

Not all audience members followed the message.

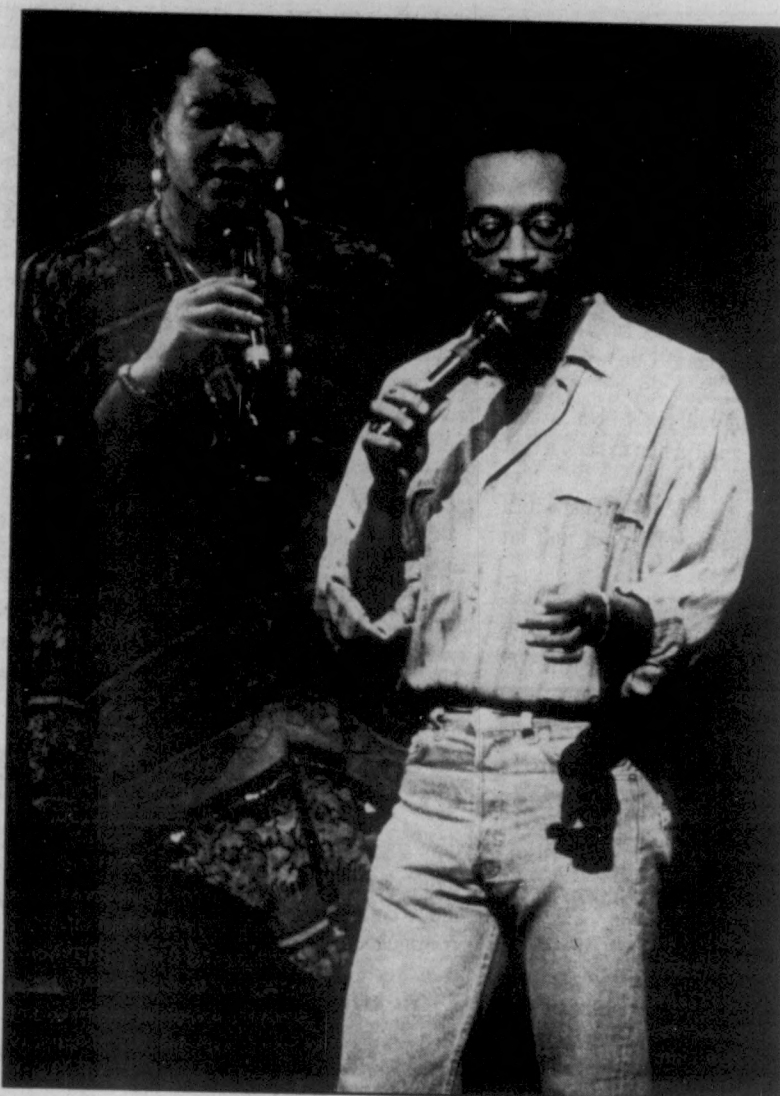

"I didn't understand any of it," said one woman who did not wish to be identified. "It was too intense for me."

Another man said he, too, found the show "very intense, too intense to see every year." Almost all reactions, though, were positive.

McFerrin and Voicestra also sang The Flintstones cartoon theme, shook hands with audience members and did several numbers using animal noises in lieu of lyrics.

The vocalists performed for two hours without an intermission and were rewarded with a standing ovation.

McFerrin and Voicestra honored it with an encore.

◆ Judicial nomination

Wathen nominated as chief justice of state Supreme Court

By Francis X. Quinn
Associated Press Writer

AUGUSTA, Maine (AP) — Associate Justice Daniel E. Wathen was named Saturday as Gov. John R. McKernan's nominee to become the next chief justice of the Maine Supreme Judicial Court.

McKernan, appearing with Wathen at a State House news conference, praised the 52-year-old law court veteran as someone already familiar with the workings of Maine's judiciary who would be capable of overseeing reform.

In response to a question, McKernan also said he had explored Wathen's thinking on the general issue of access to abortion and found that the judge's philosophical support for the current federal status quo showed him to be free of "preconceived ideological biases."

Wathen, who lives in Augusta, called the nomination a happy occasion for his family and personally satisfying after 15 years on the bench.

"This is a challenge that I am happy to have the opportunity to meet," he said.

Wathen told reporters he was "looking forward to increasing the efficiency of the Judicial Department, and I think that really — the way I view it — is increasing the efficiency of judges in the courtroom."

"And that's not to say that they are currently inefficient," he added. "But I think that sometimes the emphasis has been placed on paperwork and pre-trial preparation, and sometimes to the disadvantage of the in-court trial process.

"My theory is that what drives the judicial system is a court with a judge seated in it holding trials. And that will be the emphasis that I see."

Explaining his selection, McKernan said he had begun his search for a successor to retiring Chief Justice Vincent L. McKusick believing the nominee "needed to be somebody of intellect, of energy and of significant leadership skills."

UMaine student to run for O'Dea's house seat

By Jill Berryman
Staff Writer

Adequately representing the voices of District 130 and avoiding direct budget cuts to the University of Maine are Kathleen Stevens's main goals.

Stevens is running as a Democrat for the seat on the Maine State Legislature currently held by Representative John O'Dea, who is running for the State Senate.

"Traditionally it's been a student seat, and I'd like to keep it that way," Stevens said.

She is a senior at UMaine with a double major in English and art history.

Stevens spent the spring semester of 1991 in Washington, D.C. as a congressional intern in Sen. George Mitchell's office. Her experience there taught her the importance of remaining accessible to constituents.

"I think by attending school here, and living here and by making myself available, anyone who wanted could get in touch with me," Stevens said.

The budget and avoiding direct increases or cuts to UMaine are the number one priorities for Stevens.

"I don't think that students should suffer," she said. "I'm not adverse to looking at cuts on a different level, perhaps at an administrative level or even a higher level somewhere else, the university has taken a huge cut already."

Stevens said she is concerned about the effects another budget cut to UMaine would have on students. She said UMaine needs to remain a credible institution in order for graduates to be able to gain respect from prospective employers.

Cuts are not always avoidable, but Stevens said she doesn't think programs should be cut entirely, for example the recent proposal to eliminate the swim team.

"Instead of cutting the swim team, couldn't they cut just a little bit from other places? Maybe just a little bit from the other teams, instead of taking a whole team that's for so long tried and then gained status as a team and done well and so many students participate in that," she said.

Stevens stressed the need to avoid cuts to education at all levels because it influences the future not only of our state, but of the country. She said long-term damage is done when education is cut.

"Government exists to protect people and their rights and provide protection for people. In a time like this we need to make the cuts where there is going to be the least amount of damage," Stevens said.

Protection of the environment is another of Stevens's concerns. She said she sees a need for long-term protection, keeping in mind that it is a step-by-step process and that each issue will effect the outcome of the state.

Stevens is pro-choice and hopes things don't happen to take away women's right to choose.

Aside from her internship in Washington, Stevens has participated in past democratic political campaigns. Her mother is currently the state representative for District 117 of Bangor.

Kathleen Stevens

In her free time, Stevens enjoys skiing, reading and writing.

At this time, there are no other declared candidates for O'Dea's seat.

◆ Budget warnings

State treasurer says Wall Street giving warning about finances

By Francis X. Quinn
Associated Press Writer

AUGUSTA, Maine (AP)—State Treasurer Samuel Shapiro says Wall Street warnings about methods Maine is using to keep its biennial budget balanced are getting blunt.

When Maine went to the market with a $51 million bond issue this month, a Moody's municipal credit report contained a caution about the continuance of the state's Aa1 credit rating.

The rating agency pointedly cited a McKernan administration proposal to follow up last year's effective deferral of $26 million in debt service with a similar $23 million refunding this year.

"The potential for additional refundings of current debt service ... to provide budgetary savings in fiscal 1993 has been discussed," the agency noted.

"Further debt refinancings that delay efforts to restore long-term recurring balance would have negative implications to the existing rating level," Moody's warned.

Shapiro said the agency advisory reflected heightened skepticism.

"They were more definitive this time, to show that they were more concerned about a single issue than normally," the treasurer said late last week.

The Legislature's Appropriations Committee, which must pass on the administration proposal, is scheduled to resume deliberations Tuesday on a $23 million supplemental funding request for fiscal 1992.

- Dahmer will receive mandatory life sentence for murders
- Family members testify that doctor didn't kill loves ones

♦ Murder trial

Jury decides Dahmer was sane at time of murders

By Lisa Holewa
Associated Press Writer

MILWAUKEE (AP) — A jury found Saturday that Jeffrey Dahmer was sane when he killed and dismembered 15 men and boys in a horrifying quest for sexual gratification.

The decision means that Dahmer, who has already pleaded guilty to the murders, will receive a mandatory life sentence for each count. A judge will determine later when, or if, he will be eligible for parole.

Judge Laurence Gram Jr.'s calm reading of the jury's verdict brought to a climax one of the most stunningly gruesome murder cases in American history.

As he announced out the jurors' 10-2 decisions, reading off a grim roll call of Dahmer's prey, a shudder of emotion rolled through one victim's family after another in the gallery. Some shouted in pain. Others rocked with sobs. One or two smiled.

Dahmer sat stone-faced, as he has throughout the three-week trial.

"Justice was done," said the Rev. Gene Champion, who counseled relatives. "The healing can now come forth. That is a blessing for the families, a blessing for the city."

The jury deliberated for nearly 10 hours. The unusual trial required only that 10 of the jurors agree. After the verdicts were read, defense attorney Gerald Boyle was granted a 10-minute meeting with Dahmer and Dahmer's parents.

The law also put the burden of proof on the defense to prove that Dahmer — who admitted to boiling skulls, eating body parts and having sex with corpses — was insane.

To be proven insane in Wisconsin, defendants must prove that they suffered from a mental disease, and that the disease kept them from knowing right from wrong or made them unable to stop themselves from committing the crimes.

Few crimes compare to Dahmer's for sheer horror, and his trial provided an in-depth study of the mind of a killer who — sane or insane — had strayed as far outside the bounds of civilized behavior as most people could imagine.

Even his own lawyer said he was not there to excuse Dahmer's behavior, but to explain it. He insisted that Dahmer's craving for sex with the dead and his fear of loneliness drove him out of control — to kill again and again, unable to stop.

♦ Suicide assistance

Testimony heard in hearing of 'Dr. Death' Friday

By Ron Lesko
Associated Press Writer

ROCHESTER HILLS, Mich. (AP) — The husband of a woman who used Dr. Jack Kevorkian's suicide machine to end her life testified that the physician "didn't kill my wife."

"She did it herself," William Wantz testified Friday at a preliminary hearing to determine whether Kevorkian should stand trial for murder.

Kevorkian, 63, a retired pathologist, is charged with two counts of murder in the deaths of Marjorie Wantz, 58, and Sherry Miller, 43. Both women suffered from painful but not fatal diseases.

If District Judge James P. Sheehy decides there is evidence to support the charges, he must decide whether Kevorkian should be charged with first-degree murder, second-degree murder or manslaughter.

In a similar hearing last year, another district judge dismissed a first-degree murder charge against Kevorkian for helping another woman kill herself in 1990. That judge noted that assisted suicide isn't illegal in Michigan.

Wantz testified he didn't see his wife operate the device that killed her. The machine has a string that is pulled to open a valve that intravenously delivers an anesthetic. As the patient falls asleep, the falling arm triggers another valve, which delivers a fatal dose of a drug such as sodium pentothal.

"I was not in the room when she pulled the string," Wantz said. "When I left the room she was in the process of trying to pull the string."

◆ Presidential search

The same old song and dance

Dishonesty once again reared its ugly head at the University of Maine last week.

Its victims: the local media and the general public.

On Friday, the Chancellor's office announced Robert Woodbury's recommendation for UMaine's next president.

That same day, the Alumni Association hung a banner in their office welcoming "UMaine's new president."

On Thursday, rumors circulated the campus alluding to the fact that Fred Hutchinson was currently visiting campus and would be holding a press conference, announcing his nomination to the UMaine presidency. And trusted sources confirmed that fact.

Strangely enough, however, no one at Public Affairs knew about this event—and neither did the Chancellor's office.

"I've been getting phone calls about this all day and I don't know where this rumor has come from. As far as I know, there is no press conference scheduled," said Kay Hyatt of Public Affairs.

To make matters worse, no one could verify Fred Hutchinson's whereabouts.

Early Thursday, Ohio State officials said Hutchinson was well on his way to Maine, but they didn't know where he was.

Kent Price, assistant to the Chancellor, said Hutchinson would not be meeting Woodbury on campus, but said they would meet "somewhere in Maine."

Later that night, Woodbury curtly denied Hutchinson's presence in Maine, and refused to answer any questions on the status of the candidates.

Then, less than 24 hours later, he announced his recommendation to the Trustees. In the midst of this, several people continued to claim that Hutchinson visited campus on Friday.

Obviously, someone is not telling the truth and by all the evidence seen and heard, it seems that Public Affairs and the Chancellor's office knew much more than they were willing to reveal.

But why, at the most crucial and exciting time of the search, would they choose to withhold this information from the press, and consequently the public?

Ultimately, this "hide and seek" game the Chancellor's office and Public Affairs played at the end of last week resulted in an uninformed public and a misinformed media.

One would think that after spending seven months and $60,000 (during a state budget crisis) to find the most qualified person to lead the University of Maine, those involved in this search would be more than willing to inform the public of their decision, as soon as possible—especially if the candidate is of such high regard and credibility as Frederick Hutchinson.

So, if the Chancellor's office and Public Affairs were aware of the Hutchinson event, their withholding of this information shows they can't be trusted.

But on the other hand, if the Chancellors' office and Public Affairs really weren't aware of the Hutchinson event, how embarrassing.

How embarrassing to the already deteriorating credibility of UMaine, that these people, whose job it is to be "on top of things," supposedly knew nothing about one of the most important events occurring on campus.

One would think that for a salary of $59,000+, a public affairs official would make it his or her business to be aware of important events, ready to assist the media in a truthful, efficient manner. (MAH)

Five's a company

A word about roommates—mine, to be exact.

I write not to exorcise personal inner demons, but because living with and watching roommates is a constant reminder of how wild and wired college life can be.

And with graduation coming too soon, I grasp at memories not likely to repeat themselves.

For instance, I doubt very much that 10 years from now I'll be sitting around with a future hospital administrator, 4th grade teacher, speech therapist, and soap opera star while drinking beer, playing video games and passing around Suzanne Sommers' thigh-master.

I don't think eating oodles of noodles or macaroni and cheese for every meal would be nearly as much fun if 5 other people weren't doing it too.

My roommates remind me how much of college life is spent creating crisis and working together to solve it—all too often through a haze of beer.

At least once a semester a roommate falls apart at Gaddy's because someone they hooked up with 3 semesters ago (or the night before) looked at them wrong or danced with a different insignificant other.

I'll never forget the roommate who spent the week after Magic Johnson's AIDS testimonial wrapped up and motionless in an old quilt, positive her 7th grade boyfriend had given her HIV.

Knowing her remarkable history of unbelievable low-risk behavior, we encouraged her to get tested, to put her fears at rest.

Instead she elected to hide herself in the crevices of a couch that had lived two years as fraternity house furniture, and that is where she remains today.

Jody Myers

I have a roommate who does everything loud. He laughs and screams and slaps his knees and withers away if he doesn't hear rap music regularly.

If we offer him popcorn when he's not hungry, he coughs and gags and promises to puke all over. A simple "no thanks" would never do.

We love him, though. He provides nice contrasts between the rest of us which includes a roommate who just stepped out of a Victoria's Secret catalog.

(Incidentally, Victoria's Secret is a flower-lace-fragrance type of store that sells underwear for thin women.)

Our size 2 roommate dons her flowery garb and leaves her swept-up hair to tumble in soft tendrils around her face.

She then puts down her Victoria's Secret catalog with a sigh, saunters softly in the kitchen, and eats a dump-truck load of food before going to bed and preparing for another 4.0 semester.

Roommate #4 knows all the right dances to all the right songs and if you go to Gaddy's next Thursday she'll probably be there. She's the cheerleader-next-door, the kind of girl young boys always dream about, rarely get, and never really want to catch.

Post-graduation will find her in California.

All these different personality types have meshed together to create a system of rules to get us through this fine, UMaine experience:

1) If you haven't been to class in two weeks and a test is coming up, the best time to study is 10:30 the night before.

2) At least once you will think you have found your fated soulmate.

3) You will then discover fate is an overrated lie.

4) Your roommates will love you no matter what you wear.

5) Unless it is their clothing that's been missing for 2 weeks and has suddenly turned up.

6) It's OK to put down your boyfriend one day and go back to him the next.

But above all, good roommates go the distance. They pick you up at all hours of the night and they forgive you when you don't do dishes and pay bills late.

And they make time to listen. Our problems vary with our personalities, but different perspectives shed light.

The speech major is planning an activity for children she works with. Does anyone know how to paint with whipped cream?

The education major is ordering books and making card files and crying while she reads The Rats of NIH.

The journalist is losing ground because she just ruined 3 rolls of film and because 12,000 people read a letter describing her writing efforts as "muckraking trash."

When it gets to be too much, we'll all head to 7-11 or maybe Theftway.

Just a couple of months, guys. You've entertained me, inspired me, listened to me, and helped me enjoy this funky fresh experience called college life.

But most of all, you've made me see.

This one's for you.

Bush giveth, taketh away with new education budget

By Charles Dervarics
Special CPS Correspondent

WASHINGTON (CPS) — President Bush has unveiled a budget proposing a major restructuring of federal student aid that would increase the maximum Pell Grant but finance it in part by removing 400,000 students from the program.

The president's fiscal 1993 Education Department budget would boost Pell Grant funding by $1.2 billion and increase the maximum grant from $2,400 to $3,700 a year for the neediest students. But the president would pay for the increase by reducing the number of Pell Grants and slashing other financial aid programs.

Bush's budget would provide no new funds for either Perkins Loans or State Student Incentive Grants and would cut college work-study funds by $160 million, forcing colleges and universities to increase their contributions to the program. Currently, the government provides 70 percent of work-study salaries; the proposed budget would cut that amount to 50 percent.

"President Bush's fiscal year 1993 budget confirms for the fourth consecutive year that he is no 'education president,'" said Tajel Shah, head of the United States Student Association, a lobbying group in Washington.

Shah criticized the White House for restricting access to Pell Grants during a recession.

"With 30 states in budget crises and record-high tuition increases, these proposals would slash financial aid and force many students out of postsecondary education," she said.

In presenting the budget Jan. 29, Education Secretary Lamar Alexander said the plan reflected unprecedented federal support for education. Even with the restructuring, he said, the budget proposes a 17 percent increase in student aid. "The president's budget priority is education," Alexander said.

National Endowment for the Humanities to celebrate democracy: 2500th

SANTA CRUZ, Calif. (CPS) — An ambitious project sponsored by the National Endowment for the Humanities will celebrate the birth and development of democracy around the globe.

The project, entitled "Democracy 500" will take place this summer and continue into 1993.

The NEH is funding a series of events designed to bring a better understanding to the public of what democracy meant to the ancient Greeks when they formed participatory government 2,500 years ago.

The concept for the elaborate project was developed by the American School of Classical Studies in Athens, Greece, an institution founded by American archaeologists in 1881 to educate people about Greek civilization.

An institute on Athenian democracy will be held this summer on the University of California's Santa Cruz campus.

Institute for Women and Work established at Mt. Vernon College

WASHINGTON (CPS) — A new research center named The Institute for Women and Work in Washington is being established at Mount Vernon College to gather information on women's careers.

"We don't want it to be called a think tank, because it is not purely an academic effort. It will actually produce opportunities for women," said Robert Doolittle, director of public relations for the tiny 117-year-old school.

Resident scholars will work in the college's academic building and will study how women can improve their careers, conduct research on women's learning and career patterns and provide support on issues affecting women.

"We are looking for groups, caucuses of women who are aware of discrimination that women are dealing with in the workplace," said Dr. Marjorie Lightman, secretary pro tem of the center.

Your Daily Horoscope

By Carl Paul

For Monday February 17

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: Creating order from the furious turmoil of creative and sometimes contradictory ideas is no easy task. Your mind is extremely active, but trying to do everything that comes through your mental channels will lead you to chaos. See one project at a time through to completion and success, money, and happiness will be your reward.

ARIES (March 20 — April 19): Faced with a deadline, your obsession with perfection hinders the progress of a project. Make sure you do your best within time constraints.

TAURUS (April 20 — May 20): Your curious tendency to take life too seriously gets the better of you, causing unnecessary anxiety. Lighten up and don't worry about events that are beyond your control.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): A financial situation which has been fluctuating recently finally begins to even out. Regulate spending and set a workable budget before searching for a new source of income.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Hasty decision lead to costly mistakes. Speed and judgement are mutually exclusive in your private life. Define the problem fully before proceeding any further than necessary.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Initial discomfort with new technology is normal. The only way to get over it is through increased exposure and diligent practice. Don't give up.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Teamwork makes the difference when pulling together the loose ends of a project. Working in tandem with a determined friend enables you to focus energy where it is needed most.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 23): When a friend dabbles in pop psychology it is prudent to be skeptical. Their eagerness to analyze others is a reflection of their own insecurity.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 — Nov. 21): Anxious moments can be averted by restoring a sense of order at home. With the security of having everything in its proper place you can go about your business free from unwelcome surprises.

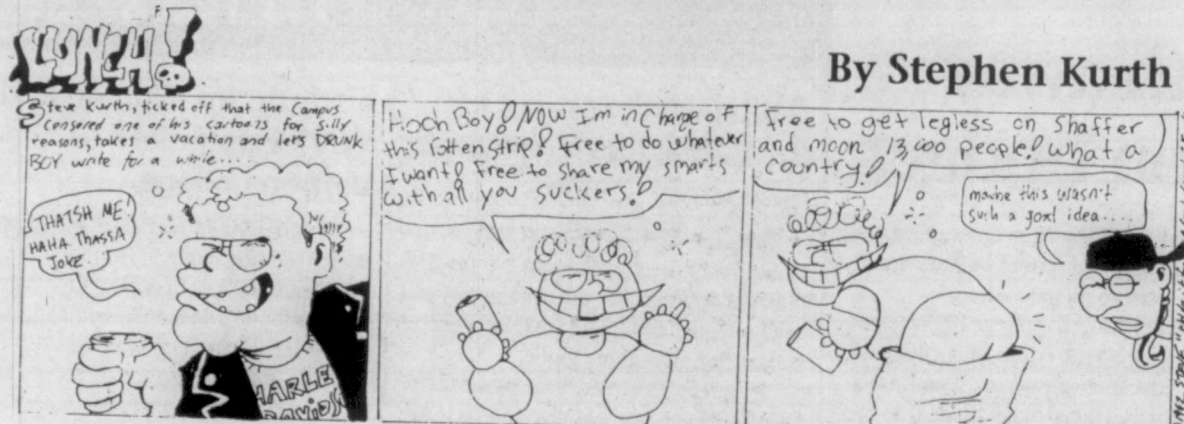

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): A friend may attempt to manipulate someone in order to cover his own inadequacy. When push comes to shove his facade will crack, but he will have alienated everyone who can help.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Someone may lay the blame for an error in their own judgement on you. Try not to get angry but do what's necessary to get your point across.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): All is not as it seems when a smooth talking associate tries to slip something by you. Be alert for telltale signs of deceit and make sure that their actions back up their promises.

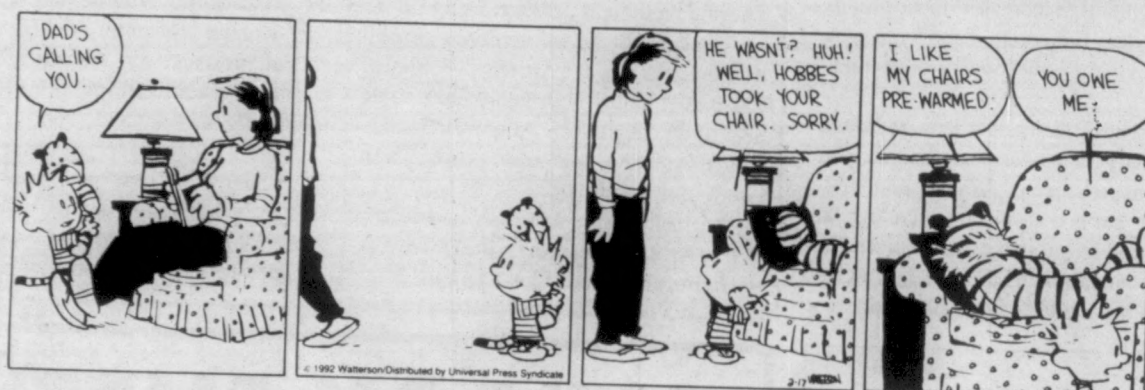

PISCES (Feb. 19 — March 19): By showing compassion for an acquaintance, you lay a foundation of trust and goodwill. A perplexing problem is less complex than it appears and can quickly be sorted out.

Your Daily Horoscope

By Carl Paul

For Tuesday February 18

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: A trail-blazer of new ideas, you are surprisingly traditional in your moral outlook. Patriotic and proud, you are willing to go to great lengths to protect and preserve what you believe in. Kindness, refinement, and generosity pave your road to success and popularity. A career in public service may very well be your best course, but don't rule out any options.

ARIES (March 20 — April 19): Be alert for information that could give you the edge over a rival in business or romance. Don't hesitate to take a calculated risk, it could pay off big.

TAURUS (April 20 — May 20): Subtle pressure is applied by family members in the hope of influencing an important decision. Dismissing their suggestions would be a mistake, but be true to what you feel is right.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): It is easy to become distracted by unimportant matters that clamor for your attention. Spreading yourself too thin results in nothing getting accomplished.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): The bartering of services leaves you with the cash needed to cover unforeseen expenditures. Make business contacts with the future in mind. Playing a hunch leads to a big gain.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Don't hesitate to buck conventional wisdom, as your unusual candor wins the respect and cooperation of those around you. Make a point of contacting someone you've been trying to impress.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Discretion gets better results than confrontation, so concentrate your efforts on clandestine maneuvers. Intuition is uncannily accurate, so heed your own advice.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 23): Input from a friend combines with your own research to get you started on the pathway to a dream. This new direction puts you in contact with someone destined to aid you in your quest.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 — Nov. 21): An overwhelming work agenda is too much for anyone else, giving you the chance to take charge. The skill used to handle the situation will be noticed.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Logic and emotion are not mutually exclusive. Information can be assessed analytically without sacrificing spontaneity. Educational pursuits open your eyes to new possibilities.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Compensating for insecurity through extravagant behavior solves nothing. Strive for greater control and self-awareness.

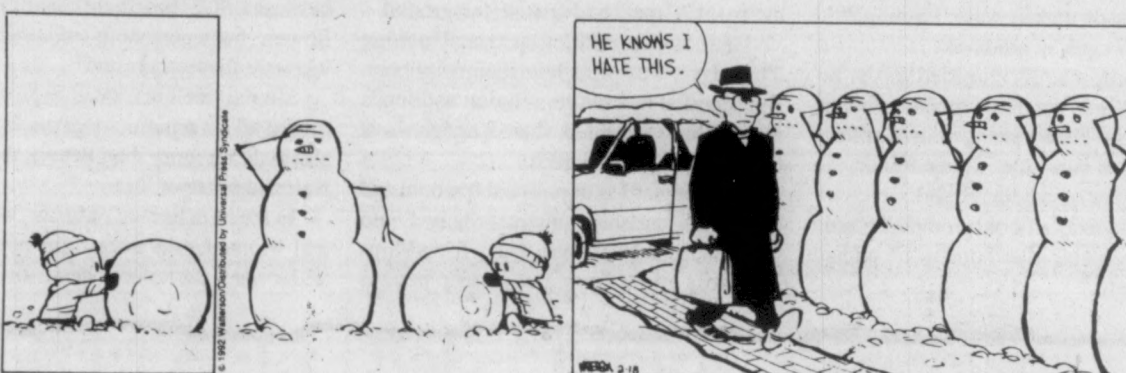

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Close relationships that you've been cultivating come to fruition, creating an amiable climate for business or romance! Caring for a loved one brings out the very best in you.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — March 19): By filling in for an absent associate you accomplish two things: learning valuable new skills and gaining the attention of your superiors. An unusual job opening may be ideal for you.

◆ Croatian-Serbian conflict

Barriers between Serbs and Croats strong amid civil warBy Mort Rosenblum
AP Special Correspondent

DUBROVNIK, Croatia (AP) — Vronimir Franic downed a shot of Jovanka Popovica's hazelnut brandy while her grandson stood outside on the city walls, training field glasses on Yugoslav gunboats.

Mrs. Popovica, 82, chuckled as she recounted the mad scramble to shelter when federal forces, led by Serbs, rained artillery on the fabled old city, which Franic, an architect, must now help rebuild.

"She's a wonderful old woman," Franic said. As a crucial afterthought, he added: "She is a Serb."

Franic, a Croat, frowned at the word "Serb" and shook his head and began muttering uncharacteristic invective. "Animals," he said.

On the other side of the line, a young Serb whose friends include Croats muttered the word "Croat" and spat on the ground.

Hatreds are nothing personal among Yugoslavs, who often love their neighbors. But, divided by culture, religion and feuds left too long unsettled, their Yugoslavia is finally giving up the ghost.

In a new setting of political freedom and economic hardship, mistrust flamed into war. Thousands of lives later, friendships still cross ethnic lines, but generic hatreds condemn a dozen different nationalities to separation.

"We love and hate at the same time," said Mugdim Karabeg, a Muslim writer in Mostar, in the republic of Bosnia-Herzegovina.

"Who can explain this fatal flaw of ours?" he mused. "Our hearts are beautiful fields of flowers, but a poisonous snake hides somewhere in the background."

Similar feelings were expressed on a tour of all six republics that made up Yugoslavia. Even more than hatred, there was a resigned sense of loss.

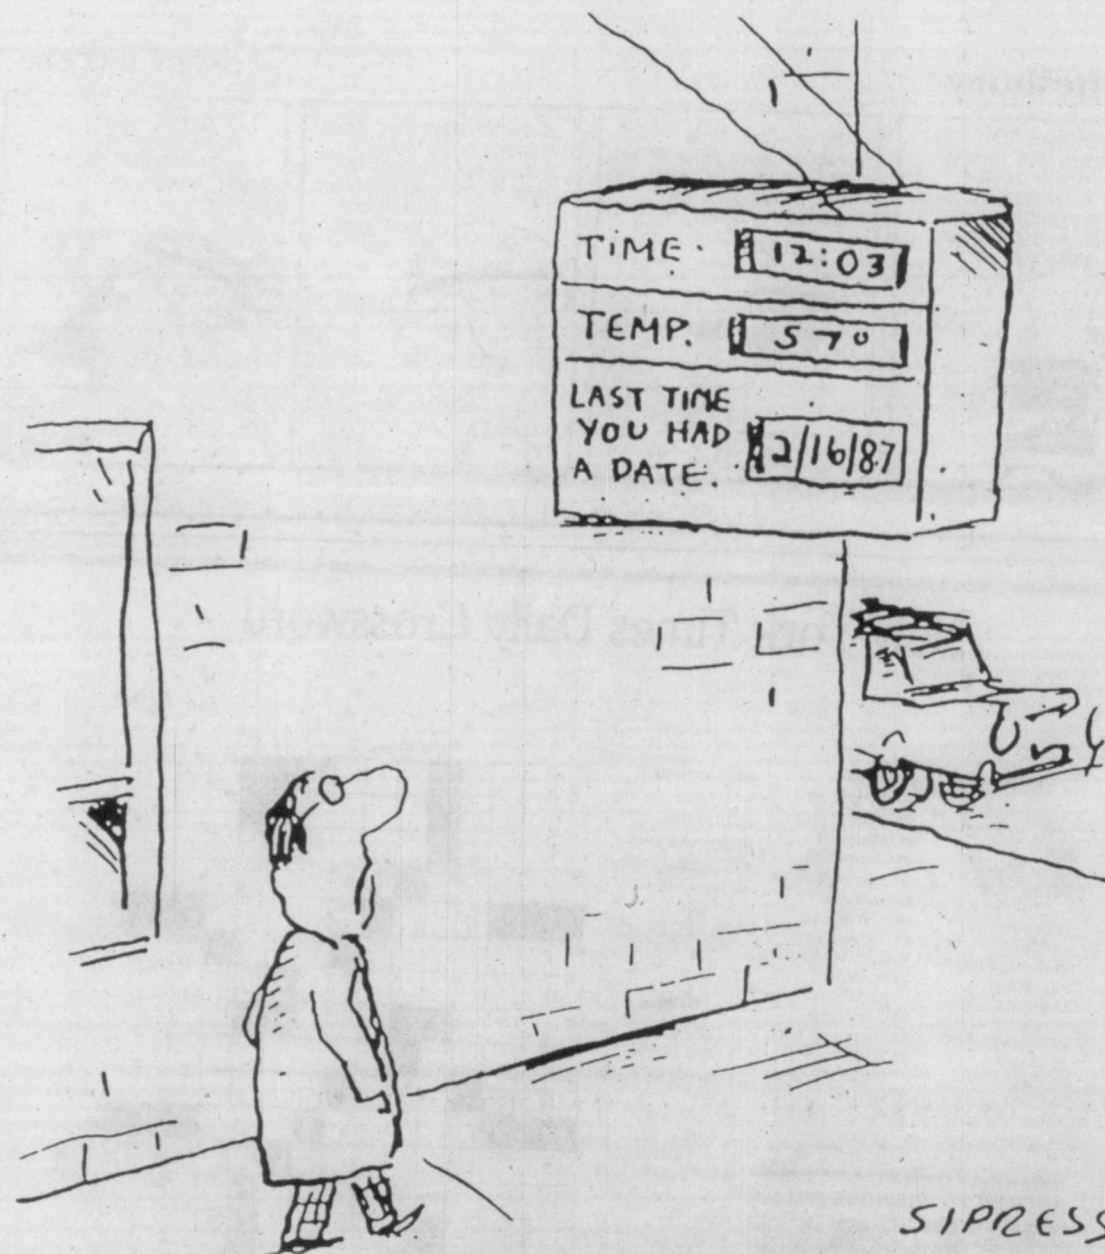

In the trenches near Mostar, where Serb and Montenegrin troops are poised for a wider war if the tenuous cease-fire in Croatia boils over, the irony is strong and bitter.

"How am I supposed to feel, waking up all of a sudden without my country?" asked Zeljko Vucinic, an artillery captain but also a Belgrade University research scientist in plant biology.

A reservist with cherub curls and thick glasses, he is not the sort of bloodthirsty Serb portrayed in propaganda. He counts himself as yet another victim in a hopeful plan gone wrong.

"You can't use rational terms to explain what is irrational," said Mario Brankic, a Mostar talk-radio host and pub owner whose roots stretch from Croatia into the Serbian heartland.

Hutchinson nominated to be UMaine president

Cox said he and Woodbury visited with "several people of various positions" during their two-day stay and found a university community highly supportive of Hutchinson.

"He's wonderful. He's risen to one of the top administrative positions of the nation's largest land-grant university, and from that has established a high-level of credibility," he said.

Cox said he thinks Hutchinson's experience and dedication is what UMaine needs to survive these difficult times.

"He (Hutchinson) knows the state of Maine, and he loves the school. He's a highly committed individual, and so we know he's not out here to use this university as a stepping stone," Cox said.

Cox said he thinks Hutchinson's tenure at UMaine will "improve the morale of the university."

"He's just a God send," he said. Prior to his Ohio tenure, Hutchinson served as executive director of the board for International and Agricultural Development AID in Washington D.C. from 1982 to 1985.

Preceding this appointment, Hutchinson held various positions at UMaine, ranging from assistant professor of soil science in 1960, to vice-president for Research and Public Service in 1981.

Hutchinson received both his bachelor of science and his master of science degrees in agronomy from UMaine, in 1953 and 1958. "He has climbed to the top of the administrative ladder here, hitting each and every rung, so I feel he really knows this university well," said Winston Pullen, former associate dean of the College of Life Sciences and Agriculture.

Pullen, who taught Hutchinson as an undergraduate, said he was thrilled to learn that Woodbury had nominated Hutchinson to be the next president.

"It's one of the most exciting days I can think of and it's such a relief to know he's been selected," he said.

"With all his experience, I really believe Fred Hutchinson is the person for the job, because he knows Maine so well. He's attentive, responsive, intelligent, and he's very compassionate. He's a great human being,"

Pullen said.

Alex Tao, a third-year medical technology major, said she was "all for" Hutchinson's selection.

"Compared to the other presidential candidates I had seen, I found that Hutchinson conveyed a sense of warmth, compassion, and openness—especially to the students. I really liked him," she said.

Diana George, a fourth-year horticulture major, said she liked the fact that he's "involved with agriculture, especially since there has been a tendency (for the university) to stray away from agriculture."

If the Trustees approve Woodbury's recommendation, Hutchinson will assume his new position on April 1.

Clinton still sliding in polls

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The gap between Democratic presidential candidates Paul Tsongas and Bill Clinton appears to have widened three days before the nation's first primary in New Hampshire.

Tsongas, the former Massachusetts senator, was at 34 percent in a new poll of New Hampshire voters published Saturday in the Arkansas Democrat-Gazette. Clinton, the Arkansas governor, had 21 percent, a two-point drop from a day earlier.

Thursday's three-day poll by Mason-Dixon Political-Media Research, has a margin of error of plus or minus 5 percentage points. Clinton's slide may have leveled off.

Tsongas jumped three percentage points from Wednesday's poll.

Iowa Sen. Tom Harkin of Iowa had 9 percent, down 1 percentage point; Nebraska Sen. Bob Kerrey of Nebraska had 8 percent, down 1; former California Gov. Jerry Brown held steady at 4 percent; and 4 percent said they would write in Mario Cuomo. Twenty percent remained undecided.

On the Republican side, the Mason-Dixon poll showed President Bush increased his lead 1 percentage point to 53 percent over conservative commentator Pat Buchanan, who was down a point at 30 percent. Undecided voters remained at 17 percent.

Mason-Dixon conducted telephone interviews of 433 likely Democratic primary voters and 459 likely Republican voters in New Hampshire.

Baker promises scientists jobs

By Ruth Sinai
Associated Press Writer

CHEL-YABINSK-70, Russia (AP)—Secretary of State James A. Baker III is promising to help nuclear scientists in the former Soviet Union find ways to stay employed and convert their skills to peaceful uses.

Baker met Friday with the very scientists who designed the weapons of the Cold War as he toured the secret core of the Soviet nuclear arms program in this fortified military city.

Chelyabinsk-70 — named for its postal code in western Siberia — is one of 10 top-secret cities hidden by Josef Stalin behind the Ural Mountains to design and build the Soviet Union's mighty military power. Until recently it did not appear on any maps.

The 6,700 scientists at the institute Baker visited make no more than 1,500 rubles a month, the equivalent of $15, said the institute's deputy director Vladislav Nikitin in a briefing to American reporters.

Baker told 30 senior scientists at the Institute of Technical Physics that he had been discussing with Germany and with Russian President Boris Yeltsin the establishment of a clearinghouse in Russia to find money for peaceful projects.

Baker aides have been flushing out the proposal in Washington and will bring their final plan to Moscow on Monday so that he can present it to Yeltsin, said an official traveling with Baker.

Members of the UM Community:

Last month, President Hitt appointed an ad hoc committee to generate ideas that could help the University of Maine respond to future cuts in our budget. At that time, the committee published a letter in The Maine Campus, asking all members of the university community to submit recommendations as to how the university could best deal with the present financial difficulties. We received approximately 40 letters from all segments of the university. The letters, many of which included multiple proposals, contained specific cost-saving suggestions and other ideas as to how the university could operate more effectively. The ad hoc committee reviewed all the letters and incorporated many of the suggestions into their report to President Hitt. This report will also be shared with the members of the Program and Budget Review Task Force Committee.

We thank all of you who responded for taking the time to convey your thoughts to us.

Very truly yours,

we know a lot of people who couldn't make the meeting but are committed to it. What we really need are a lot of hands on the day of Bumstock," he said.

The committee is also considering concession stands sponsored by various groups.

"That's still in the works. We really want to create an all day atmosphere for the concert," Smeriglio said.

Various other events were addressed at the last OCB meeting, held at the Ram's Horn last Thursday at 5 p.m.

"We've had a lot of momentum with the Ram's Horn. Right now we're just finishing up painting and cleaning up the kitchen. We're basically just getting things in order,"

Maycomber said.

Once the Ram's Horn renovations are complete, OCB will submit a proposal to the university for additional funds for future projects.

"We've got to be able to show that we're doing something to get some money for the place," he said.

O'Dea, a UMaine graduate, was first elected to the State House in 1988 and was re-elected in 1990.

While the election is in November, O'Dea said he is taking nothing for granted and has started working on his campaign already.

"There are 35,000 doors in this district," he said, "and that's a lot of doors to knock on."

OPEC slashes excess production to keep up prices

By Sally Jacobsen
Associated Press Writer

GENEVA (AP) — In a desperate bid to prevent a worldwide collapse in oil prices this spring, OPEC nations struck a tentative deal late Saturday that would slash their excess production by more than a million barrels a day.

But moments after word of the agreement spread, officials said Saudi Arabia and Iran, the cartel's two largest producers, expressed reservations about the provisions. Saudi Arabia killed an earlier agreement

Friday, pulling out at the last minute.

The latest accord, if formally approved by the producers, would mark the first time since the Persian Gulf crisis that the nations have pledged sharp cuts in output.

Iran's oil minister, Gholamreza Aqazadeh, said the arrangement by the 13-nation Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries would set a new output ceiling of 22.98 million barrels a day, effective immediately.

That would remove about 1.4 million barrels of crude from the world market.

"It's not an agreement that would satisfy any of us," said Indonesia's oil minister,

Ginandjar Kartasasmita. "This is the best we could do at this juncture."

The ministers have been struggling since Wednesday to negotiate an arrangement that would pull at least a million barrels of oil a day off the market to try to push up crude prices.

Prices are in a slump, and the producers fear a further slide if output is not curtailed.

The average price of a basket of crudes monitored by the cartel has been running more than $4 a barrel below OPEC's target of $21.

Saudi officials objected to cutting their nation's output from 8.5 million barrels a day to 7.88 million barrels as stipulated in the tentative agreement, said one OPEC minister. The Saudis said they would do all they could to limit production but had no intention of producing less than 8 million barrels a day, the minister said, speaking on condition of anonymity.

Saudi Arabia, whose share of OPEC production jumped sharply after the Gulf crisis, has demanded it be allowed to maintain its one-third chunk of the cartel's overall production.

The cartel has been pumping at high levels since Iraq invaded fellow OPEC member Kuwait in August 1990.

Shelling breaks out in Somalia hours after cease-fire

By Chege Mbitiru
Associated Press Writer

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — Heavy shellfire broke out Saturday in Somalia's capital hours after warring factions pledged to end three months of fighting that has killed or wounded more than 30,000 people, mostly civilians.

At least 16 people were injured in Saturday's shelling, and the chief U.N. mediator expressed doubts that the peace agreement reached Friday at the United Nations could hold.

Some of the few foreign relief workers who remain in the devastated East African capital of Mogadishu believe the warring clans will not end their savage power struggle until they run out of ammunition.

Without a cease-fire in the capital, U.N. officials say they will not resume a huge relief effort to feed the 2 million Somalis who the Red Cross estimates need urgent help.

A U.N. official in contact with colleagues in Mogadishu by satellite telephone said Gen. Mohamed Farrah Aidid's forces early Saturday shelled northern Mogadishu, the stronghold of Aidid's rival, interim President Ali Mahdi Mohamed.

At least 16 people were injured, the U.N. official said, speaking on condition of anonymity. But he said the figure represented only those taken to makeshift hospitals.

He said there were no reports of shellfire later in the day or of fighting in southern Mogadishu, which is controlled by Aidid, the chairman of the United Somali Congress political party.

The official said up 150 people had been killed and an estimated 500 injured since the talks aimed at arranging a cease-fire began in New York on Wednesday.

Unlike combatants in most civil wars, the two rival leaders share the same ideology, language, ethnic group and religion.

They represent rival factions of the Hawiye clan and the United Somali Congress, which ousted President Mohamed Siad Barre a year ago but failed to establish control throughout the nation of 8.4 million people.

◆ UMaine Hockey

UMaine takes two from BC; now 25-3

By Tim Hopley
Sports Editor

Same old same old. Stingy defense, timely offense and some big-time goaltending led the University of Maine hockey team to a two-game sweep of Boston College 4-2 and 4-1 this weekend.

The Eagles (10-16-3 overall, 6-9-2 in Hockey East) attempted to slow down the high-flying Black Bears and did for nearly four of the six periods. But a pair of three-goal periods (the third in the opener and first in the finale) led UMaine to the victories.

After a scoreless opening period, David Fransoza of BC took a failed clearing attempt and wristed it past Garth Snow for the Eagles' only lead of the weekend.

Jean-Yves Roy answered back for the Black Bears late in the second as defenseman Andy Silverman's initial shot toward the net deflected off Fransoza and then Roy's shoulder, eluding the blocker of BC netminder Scott LaGrand for a 1-1 tie.

Scott Pellerin and Cal Ingraham then put the game out of reach, scoring 2:11 apart early in the third as UMaine survived a late Eagle charge for the win.

"(BC's) No. 8 (Todd Hall) had just flattened me but I got up and beat him to the front of the net," Pellerin said of his goal. "Cal gave me a great pass and I beat him (LaGrand) far side to the post."

The senior tri-captain from Shediac, NB, added an empty-net goal on the power play in the last minute to account for the 4-1 final.

"Their second goal made all the difference in the game," retiring Eagle Coach Len Ceglarski said. "And then we took a bad penalty which led to their third goal."

Snow turned aside 21 shots in game one, while LaGrand was sensational, stopping 32

Black Bear attempts.

On Saturday, UMaine opened up a 3-0 first period lead as first Brian Downey and then Randy Olson and Roy lit the lamp.

Olson, back in the line-up after missing several games with a shoulder separation, sparked the three-goal outburst, beating LaGrand to the left post on a wrap-around move for his ninth goal of the season. The play started with some hard forechecking behind the BC net by Roy, who left the puck for Olson and picked up an assist.

BC answered back with two goals of their own early in the second when Rob Canavan and Marc Beran beat Snow to make it 3-2. The Eagles almost tied the game as Sal Manganaro had two point-blank chances in the last five minutes of the period, only to be robbed by Snow.

Pellerin then scored his third goal of the weekend with 1:55 to play in the second and after a scoreless third period, the Black Bears had won No. 2 on the weekend and No.

25 on the season.

LaGrand again was outstanding for BC, turning aside 26 UMaine chances. His Black Bear counterpart Snow was equal to the task on this night though, as the junior from Wrentham, Mass. recorded 20 saves.

Snow is now 21-3-1 on the season.

Shots from the Point

•The three-game UMaine sweep of the season series versus Boston College is the first ever of the Eagles by a Black Bear team.

•Snow is five wins away from tying the UMaine record for most wins in a season by a goaltender (25), set in 1987-88 by Scott King.

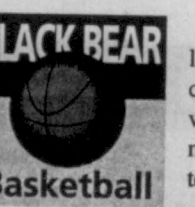

•Pellerin needs one goal to become the first Black Bear player to ever accumulate 100 goals and 100 assists in a career. Roy is eight assists away from the same mark.

•UMaine returns to action when they travel to Northeastern Friday and New Hampshire Saturday.

Black Bears stop skid with 83-67 win

By Chad Finn
Sports Writer

The peaks and valleys roller-coaster ride continues for the University of Maine men's basketball team.

Fortunately for the Black Bears, yesterday's game versus the Boston University Terriers definitely fit into the peak category. Behind a career-high 26 points from senior forward Derrick Hodge, the UMaine hoopers scored often and early en route to a 83-67 victory.

The Black Bears (13-12 overall, 6-4 in North Atlantic Conference competition) were coming off two consecutive defeats after winning their previous five outings. Particularly appalling to UMaine fans was the sluggish play exhibited in Thursday's 68-63 loss to a lesser Northeastern squad.

However, UMaine Coach Rudy Keeling said his team was much more ready to face the Terriers than they were Northeastern.

"Our guys were very well prepared to play today," Keeling said. "We had a good practice yesterday, and I could tell in the shootaround this morning and in the locker room that we were going to be mentally ready."

UMaine sophomore guard Deonte Hursey, who contributed another brilliant all-around performance with 16 points, 12 rebounds and 7 assists, agreed with Keeling's assessment.

"Not to take anything away from Northeastern, but the only way we were going to lose to them was if we beat ourselves. We came out today more ready to play, and it paid off," Hursey said.

Behind 10 points from Hodge (including two three-pointers), the Black Bears broke out of the gate to take an early 12-9 lead with 13:32 left in the half.

Precisely three minutes and 17 seconds later, the score was suddenly 26-9 as five points and two assists from floor leader Marty Higgins keyed the UMaine gang on a 14-0 run.

A jumper from BU's Robert Bailey snapped the streak at the 9:58 mark, but the damage was already done. It was going to be a very long day for the Terriers.

BU (9-13, 4-5) managed to trim the Black Bear lead down to as little as 11 on a Danny Delgado jumper at the 3:29 mark, but UMaine closed the half on a 9-2 run to take a 42-25 lead into the locker room.

The Black Bears opened the second half much the same way they finished the first, on a roll. A beautiful Hodge reverse layup plus a foul lifted UMaine to a 50-28 lead with 17:03 left.

The Bears' lead hovered around 20 for the next several minutes as the Terriers attempts to fight their way back proved futile.

A pair of Hodge free-throws at the 7:15 mark boosted UMaine to their biggest lead of the day at 72-45 as BU Coach Bob Brown pretty much conceded the game to the Bears and emptied his bench.

Soon thereafter Keeling followed, getting his starters some much-deserved rest and giving the likes of Dana Doran, Chris Foltz and Bob Strong the opportunity to show the 2,257 fans in attendance what they could do.

Foltz was the only of the three to score, as the rest of the game was basically fodder for the statisticians. Keeling said he hopes his squad can keep up their intensity when they take on Hartford Wednesday in Connecticut.

"Hopefully we'll have the same attitude and enthusiasm down there that we had today," Keeling said. "It would be nice to go into the (NAC) tournament on a roll."

Points in the paint:
• The Black Bears return to Alford Arena Saturday evening when the University of Wisconsin/Milwaukee comes to town. Tipoff is set for 7:30.

Lakers retire Magic's jersey; Bird on hand

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) — Magic Johnson's brilliant NBA career — which he says might not be over — was recognized Sunday as the Los Angeles Lakers retired his jersey at halftime of their game against the Boston Celtics.

"I'm looking forward to playing in the Olympics. I hope if I do decide to come back you won't be upset if we do this all over again," Johnson said at the conclusion of the emotional 45-minute ceremony.

Johnson was honored a week after his Most Valuable Player performance in the NBA All-Star game, a 29-minute effort in which he had 25 points, nine assists and five rebounds.

It was the only game Johnson has played in since he announced his retirement on Nov. 7 because he had tested positive for the virus that causes AIDS. His current plans call for him to return as a player for the United States in the Summer Olympics at Barcelona, Spain.

"People ask me all the time, what do I miss most about playing?" Johnson said. "It's not the playing part I miss the most, it's just being one of the boys."

"You never know how great it is to be one of 12 guys," Johnson said, his voice cracking with emotion. "You work for eight months and try to be champions. I have special memories of every team I played on. I think it's not the team, but the players themselves."

"We sweated, fought together, we lost together and we won together."

Johnson, 32, wore No. 32 for the Lakers for 12 seasons. He led them to five NBA championships and to the league finals on four other occasions.

He has been selected as the NBA's Most Valuable Player three times and MVP of the NBA Finals three times. In addition, he's the league's career assists leader.

Johnson joined Jerry West (No. 44), Elgin Baylor (No. 22), Wilt Chamberlain (No. 13) and Kareem Abdul-Jabbar (No. 33) as Lakers who have had their jerseys retired and displayed high above the court at the Forum. All were present Sunday.

Larry Bird, sidelined because of a bad back, attended the ceremony and received a standing ovation from the crowd.

"I'm not the one retiring here, very soon," said Bird, a longtime rival and good friend of Johnson's. "Your outstanding play was never more evident than during the rivalry between the Lakers and Celtics, you'll always be a part of our family."

"He's not done yet, we're going to Barcelona and bringing back the gold."

Johnson first mentioned publicly the possibility of his returning as a professional player on Jan. 29, but Sunday's retirement ceremony went on as previously planned.

Duke 71, N. Carolina St. 63

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Duke ended a five-year losing streak at North Carolina State as Grant Hill continued to shine in place of Bobby Hurley, leading the top-ranked Blue Devils to a 71-63 victory Sunday.

Hill scored 20 points and played 40 minutes for the third straight game since being moved to point guard after Hurley broke a foot. The 6-foot-8 Hill scored mostly on driving layups and from the free-throw line in the closing minutes.

The Wolfpack (9-15, 3-8 Atlantic Coast Conference) set a school record with their ninth consecutive loss. The previous record of eight was set in 1939-40 and matched in 1945-46.

Christian Laettner and Thomas Hill scored 16 points each for the Blue Devils (20-1, 10-1), who reached 20 victories for the ninth consecutive season. Tom Gugliotta, playing most of the second half with four fouls, scored 23 points for the Wolfpack.

Duke was sluggish in the first half, but finally got its game going as several keys players for N.C. State got into foul trouble.

Navratilova wins title

CHICAGO (AP) — Martina Navratilova became tennis' all-time singles titles leader by beating Jana Novotna 7-6 (7-4), 4-6, 7-5 in the final of the Virginia Slims of Chicago on Sunday.

Navratilova won her 158th career singles championship and 12th Chicago Slims crown. She and Chris Evert, who retired in 1989, had been tied with 157 singles titles. Jimmy Connors is the men's all-time leader with 109 singles championships.

It looked like Novotna would pull off her second consecutive upset in this event before Navratilova fought back to finally break the record she had shared with Evert. On Saturday Novotna rallied from a set down to beat top-seed Steffi Graf in a semifinal.

The 23-year-old Novotna, 12 years younger than her opponent, used a blazing serve and precise passing shots to take a 5-4 lead in the final set. Navratilova fought off four match points in the 10th game.

Novotna, 0-6 lifetime against Navratilova, double faulted to lose service and angrily slammed her racquet into the net.
