U. S. N. MARINE PAINT

Better than white lead and oil mixed by hand.

MESSRS. BILLINGS, KING & CO.,
New York, N. Y.

GENTLEMEN:—We take pleasure in saying that we have been using your paints and varnishes continuously for the past six years, and with perfectly satisfactory results.

In addition to the Machias and Castine we are using your U. S. N. MARINE WHITE and other goods on the City of Lowell and Harbor Defense Ram Katahdin.

Having been applied to vessels, both steel and wood, we regard the wearing test to be a severe one.

Very truly yours.

A word about Floors.

Practical painters and housekeepers say:
U. S. N. Deck Paint is the best paint they ever used for floors, simply because it finishes them.

U. S. Hotel, Saratoga, N. Y., December, 1891.

BILLINGS, KING & Co., New York;

Gentlemen:—More than a million feet walked over our piazzas during the season, and the paint at the close was apparently as good as the day it was put on. We have found your U. S. N. Deck Paint to possess unquestionable merit.

Miss Emma Johonnet has just completed her second year in the Goodwin school, and the excellent results of the faithful work done by teacher and pupils are plainly evident: in the interest and enthusiasm of the workers; in the thorough knowledge of the subjects taught; and, last, though by no means least, in the neatness and taste exhibited in the school-room. This is a very interesting, wide-awake school. The parents are interested, as well as the scholars, and proofs of their interest are seen in the improved appearance of school-room, and school grounds. This district has a School Improvement League—would that every district in town might follow this example.

Excellent work was done in the spring term in District No. 2 by Miss Addie L. Davis. Even the smallest scholars made marked advancement. During the summer several families moved from this district, leaving too few scholars to maintain a school.

The Village district was fortunate in securing Miss Lula G. Millett to teach the spring and fall terms. She worked patiently and faithfully for the good of her pupils, but, in a school so large, and so poorly graded, it is impossible for any one teacher to secure the very best results. The school should be graded, or an assistant employed.

The winter term opened prosperously under the instruction of Harry I. Smith, but, before the end of the second week, the school was visited by the measles, and so prolonged was the visit as to prove a great injury to the school. Mr. Smith is a progressive, up-to-date teacher, and those who attended school made marked improvement.

In District No. 5 the spring term was taught by Miss Thena N. Lowe, the fall term by Miss Lelia S. Smith, and Miss Lula G. Millett taught the winter term.

Both Miss Lowe and Miss Smith are energetic teachers, and under their care the progress was commendable. I was unable to visit the winter term near its close, but feel sure that the results of Miss Millett's teaching were satisfactory to both parents and pupils.

Mrs. L. B. Foley taught the spring term in District No. 6. The school was small, but rapid advancement was made by those who attended. The youngest pupils made wonderful progress in learning to read and spell.

In the fall Ivan J. Lenfest taught the school with good success. The reading classes made great improvement.

Miss Alice E. Homstead was employed for the winter term, and especially good work was done under her direction.

This is an excellent school, and comes very near self-government.

Miss Bertie Wilkins of St. Albans has had charge of the school in District No. 7 for the entire year. She enjoys her work, secures the good will of her pupils, and the best results are produced. While a good teacher for older scholars, she does not neglect the younger ones, as one would learn by visiting her school.

District No. 9 has had three teachers during the year. The spring term was taught by Miss Alice E. Homstead, a teacher of ability and experience, who had previously taught here. Mrs. Lucy Z. Osborne taught in the fall, proving herself an efficient teacher. Miss Lelia S. Smith had the care of the winter term. She enjoyed her school very much, and I think gave general satisfaction.

There was no spring term in District No. 11, but very acceptable work was done during the fall and winter terms by Miss Addie L. Davis. At my last visit I found in this school a little girl of three years reading well in the Second Reader. She had attended school two terms.

Miss Alice B. Collamore, who has so successfully conducted the school in District No. 13 for many terms, taught the spring and fall terms with excellent results.

She began the winter term, but at the end of two weeks was called away to other work, and her sister Sara taught the remainder of the term. She knew and carried out her sister's plans for the work of the term, and although this was her first attempt at teaching, the examination showed that the time had been well improved.

An excellent High School is now in progress taught by Irving O. Bragg. We regret that every scholar in town, who is fitted to go, is not attending this school.

The progress in our schools during the past year is very encouraging.

Map-drawing has been taught in nearly every school, and some very excellent work done in this line.

Nature studies have awakened a new interest and enthusiasm in the pupils.

Modern methods of teaching to read are found in all our schools, and, as a result, there are no scholars who cannot read, and but few who read in the Primer. Writing is taught at the same time with reading, and the youngest can read writing, and write their own names, and short words.

Our teachers are wide awake and embrace every opportunity for advancing their own knowledge, that they may do better work in their profession.

They read educational journals, attend summer schools and teachers' institutes, and gather up new ideas to be worked out in the school-room. Many of them already hold state certificates, and others are planning to take the examination this year. But, in order to attain the best results in our schools, the hearty co-operation of the parents is necessary.

They should become acquainted with the teachers, visit the schools, and learn for themselves how the work is done. Their interest in the schools, and manifest appreciation of the efforts put forth there, would prove a great help and encouragement to both teachers and pupils.

L. MARIA LIBBY, Supt. of Schools.

With the assistance of the teachers, a catalogue has been made of all the text books belonging to the town that are in a suitable condition for use. Those that were too much worn or shattered to be of further service were returned to the publishers, and new books will be needed to replace them before the opening of the next term. Now that the old debt on school books is paid, we trust the town will raise a liberal sum of money each year, not only to furnish writing books, and replace discarded books, but also to supply books that are much needed in all our schools for supplementary work.

The books remaining in the schools are in very good condition.
