Residents may see more student parking spaces

By Kathleen Brennan
Staff Writer

Students living in Gannett, Cumberland and Androscoggin halls may not have to walk so far in the snow this winter because of a proposed change in parking allocation.

Spaces in the parking lot near the Stewart Commons area resident halls may be changed from faculty to student spaces because of a lack of faculty use, James LeBlond of the General Student Senate said.

"When that lot is full, it is mostly commuters that park there. Residents have nowhere to go," LeBlond said.

Currently, there are seven spots for faculty, one handicapped spot and the rest of the cramped space is left for students, LeBlond said. He hopes the resolution will change the faculty spots from seven to two spaces: one for the resident director and one for the janitorial staff.

LeBlond proposed the idea after going to Public Safety about the winter parking ban. Public Safety told LeBlond students would have to park by the Steam Plant.

"Where is a place to park convenient for students? The Steam Plant by the river is a quarter mile away," LeBlond said in reaction to Public Safety's solution.

LeBlond said the lack of reasoning for the faculty spots to be so close to resident halls was one of the main reasons for the resolution. He said students sometimes have no other choice than to park in the faculty spots. Changing the spaces from faculty to student parking would save students from what LeBlond calls "a Public Safety haven for giving tickets."

"I decided to address parking problems in the area of campus I represent," LeBlond said. "By minimizing faculty/staff spots, it will give a dozen more spots for students. Students could park near by instead of parking in what I call 'Siberia'."

The resolution prepared by LeBlond passed unanimously through Student Affairs and GSS. It now must go through the Traffic and Safety Committee

Orono applies for grant to help improve, maintain rental housing

By M. Jon Rinaldi
Staff Writer

On Nov. 18, the town of Orono submitted an application for a Housing Assistance Grant for $600,000 to the Department of Economic and Community Development for a rental rehabilitation program.

According to the application, this program would help landlords and tenants bring rental properties up to building code standards and protect neighboring properties from the ill affects of substandard properties.

The application cites the large number of students in the area, coupled with the large number of rentals, as a cause of the deterioration in the quality of the rental housing.

"When you make properties better, you tend to increase awareness and appreciation of the occupants. They will care more about the surrounding community," Gerald Kempen, Orono town manager, said.

Mary Casciotti, assistant town manager, said the program was designed to help lower-to moderate-income renters.

Fraternity under scrutiny

By Tony Hallett
Staff Writer

The case involving a University of Maine fraternity and an alleged racist party has been turned over to the Department of Judicial Affairs. Members of a Native American group are pushing the administration to take action.

The controversy arose from an "Indian party" that apparently took place at the Phi Eta Kappa fraternity house Saturday, Nov. 19.

"IRATE (Indigenous Resistance to Tribal Extinction) will not rest until the university addresses racism in its conduct code," Esther Attean, the coordinator of IRATE, said.

"There is nothing that speaks to the question of racism as a specific violation in the conduct code," Dean of Student Services Dwight Rideout said. Rideout stated this was a major concern of his and of the administration.

The conduct code is not the only issue that has IRATE in an uproar.

"We took the fraternity on their word, and they lied to us," Attean said. "They violated our trust." Attean was further displeased the party was "held in secret on top of that."

"We are demanding a reprimand of the fraternity at the very least and an impending investigation on top of that," she said.

Tuesday, Nov. 22, 30 members of IRATE and several Native American students held a silent protest in front of the Phi Eta House. In a press release,

Orono hopes to receive some economic assistance to help with the upkeep of the town's many rental properties. (Page Photo.)

Mike Bush, of Eastern Maine Development Corporation, who helped write the application said, "Low-and-middle income people must be the people who will be occupying the residence. Students could be included."

In Orono, an urban community by Maine standards, 50 percent of all housing units are classified as rentals. According to the U.S. Census, one-third of all units were built before 1939, and nearly 56 percent were built before 1959.

According to town records, there are 352 apartment buildings in Orono with 15 of these considered by the Orono town assessor to have below average construction quality. Another 53 buildings, comprising 123 units, are considered to be in below-or less-than-average condition.

In the final category of depreciation, 263 units have been classified as having "additional physical depreciation, functional depreciation or economic depreciation."

Mario Vargas Llosa wins Cervantes prize

1 MADRID, Spain (AP) — Mario Vargas Llosa won the Miguel de Cervantes literature prize Monday for his lifelong work as a novelist, playwright and essayist in the Spanish language.

The Cervantes prize is considered the most prestigious literary award in the Spanish-speaking world.

The 58-year-old Peruvian-born novelist published his first novel, "The Time of the Hero," in 1963. Two of his most widely acclaimed plays are "The Young Lady of Tacna" and "The Jest."

Other well known works include "The Cubs and Other Stories," "Conversation in The Cathedral" and "Aunt Julia and the Scriptwriter."

"I'm very excited," Vargas Llosa said in a radio interview from his home in London. "I never tire of thanking Spain for so many things, above all for things regarding my work as a writer."

Peruvian national, lost a runoff election for the Peruvian presidency to Alberto Fujimori and has since left politics.

The Cervantes prize is named after the 17th century author of "Don Quixote" and carries a tax-free award of $115,000.

Other top contenders for the prize this year included Chilean Jose Donoso, Colombian Gabriel Garcia Marquez and Spain's Jose Camilo Cela, the 1989 Nobel laureate for literature.

Arafat warns peace process could fall apart

3 -BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) — With his 6-month-old administration facing economic collapse and threatened by civil war, Yasser Arafat appealed today to international donors to make good on aid pledges so he can keep his promises to Palestinians.

So far, just $140 million has been paid, and Arafat warned the peace process could fall apart unless his government receives the rest — about $700 million promised for this year.

"There is no infrastructure left after the Israeli occupation. We are starting from zero," Arafat told reporters today before the start of the two-day conference.

But World Bank Vice President Caio Koch-Weser estimated that only about third of the money — $200 million to $240 million — will arrive this year.

This is partly due to delays in implementing self-rule, which did not begin until May, and partly because donors want more guarantees the money will not go astray once it reaches the Palestinian territories, Koch-Weser said.

• Rabin

Prime Minister heckled by settlers

4 HEBRON, West Bank (AP) — Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin said today that he seeks to separate Israel from the Palestinians in the West Bank and Gaza Strip, but would not uproot Jewish settlements at this point.

"My goal is to begin the separation," Rabin told reporters in Hebron, saying that Israel is pressing for international aid for the Palestinian authority so there will be more jobs in the West Bank.

"Then we will not face heavy pressure to give permission to tens of thousands of Palestinians to come work in Israel," he said.

Rabin was repeatedly heckled by Jewish settlers during a brief tour of the Tomb of the Patriarchs, site of the massacre of 29 Muslim worshipers by a Jewish settler in February. The site, holy to both Jews and Muslims, was reopened to Muslim and Jewish worshipers on Nov. 7.

"Rabin, you have no right to give up the Cave of the Patriarchs and Hebron!" Bentzi Vataro, a settler from nearby Kiryat Arba, bellowed repeatedly as the prime minister approached the building.

Another worshiper, Rachel Brada, 36, gathered her four children and abruptly left when she heard the prime minister was approaching.

• Drug war

Military force answer to Rio's crime woes

2 RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (AP) — With Brazil's No. 1 tourist city awash in violent crime as corrupt police stood idly by, the feeling grew to a conviction: Only the army could fix Rio.

So on Nov. 18, President Itamar Franco unleashed Operation Rio in this sprawling seaside city, which had been hit by a wave of drug-related deaths, kidnappings and armored car holdups just at the start of the peak tourist season.

Thousands of soldiers were sent to capture the drug lords who control organized crime from armed strongholds in hillside shantytowns.

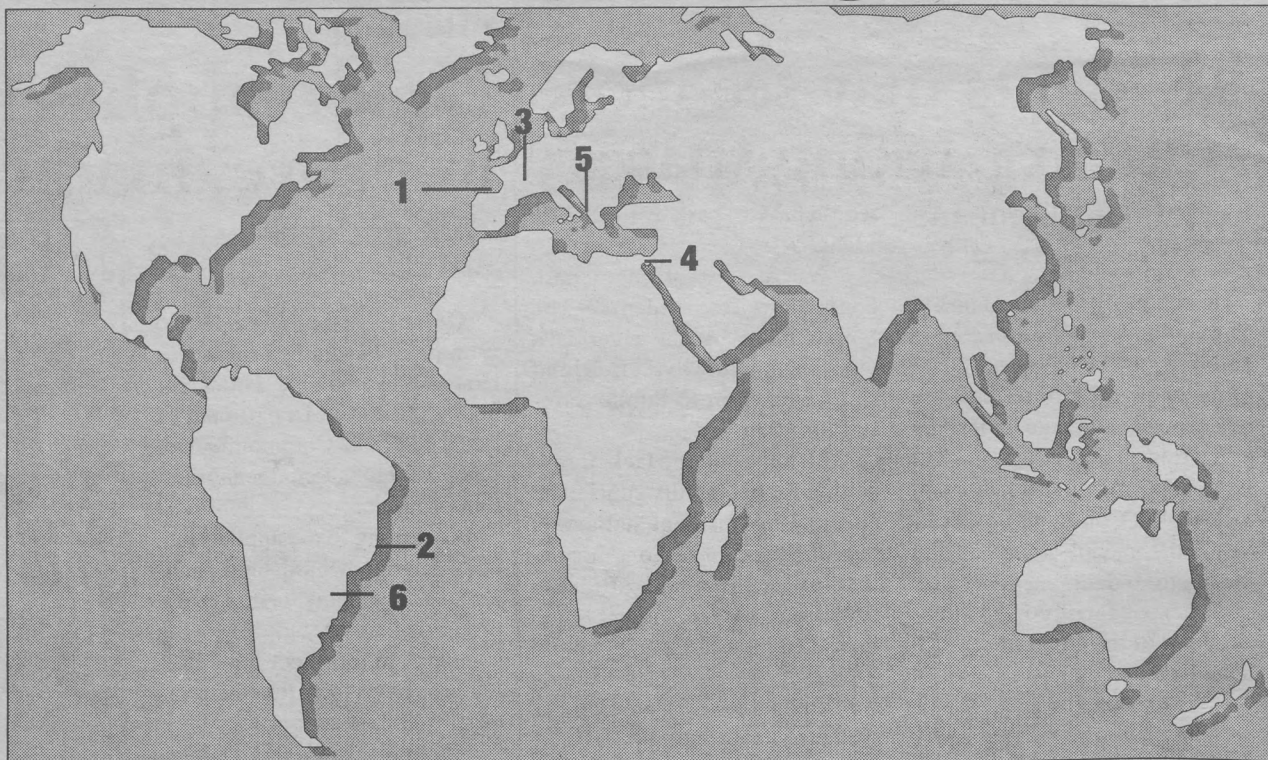

At first, residents applauded as the number of murders, car thefts and bank robberies plunged in Rio, where police say about 20 people were being killed every day. Morgue workers claim the toll was twice as high.

But as the campaign unfolded, some unsettling questions arose. Is sending troops after crooks an admission that civil solutions don't work? What are the army's limits — if any — in arresting and questioning suspects?

And, worst of all, what happens if the army fails?

"Prestige is being sought here by both sides — the army and the traffickers — and if the drug lords are successful in holding off the mighty armed forces, we are going to be in for serious, serious trouble," said Rene Dreifuss, a professor of political science at the Fluminense Federal University.

Detention of peacekeepers threatens U.N. mission

5 SARAJEVO, Bosnia-Herzegovina (AP) — Mediators seeking a new path to peace after Serb war gains in Bosnia paralyzed the West defied a missile threat today and came to Sarajevo for talks with the Bosnian government.

The government was under increasing pressure to accept an overall peace settlement that would seal the Serbs' hold over much of the 70 to 75 percent of Bosnia they now control, and perhaps allow their long-sought confederation with neighboring Serbia proper.

The U.N. mission to Bosnia itself is in jeopardy with the Serbs' detention of 400 of the 24,000 peacekeepers. The Serbs mainly detain the peacekeepers as bargaining chips, as insurance against air strikes.

U.N. Secretary-General Boutros-Boutros Ghali was en route to Sarajevo and the Bosnian Serb stronghold of Pale to see Wednesday whether the mission could continue.

"The absolute rock bottom conditions" for going on are: halt the fighting around northwestern Bihac, a Bosnia-wide cease-fire and an end to detention and harassment of U.N. personnel, said U.N. spokesman Michael Williams.

Elections in Uruguay come at crucial time

6 MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay (AP) — A decade after guiding Uruguay back to democratic rule, President-elect Julio Sanguinetti will oversee the country's entry into a regional free trade zone.

Sanguinetti, of the Colorado Party, won a narrow victory in Sunday's election over rivals from the ruling National Party and a leftist coalition. He takes office March 1.

The charismatic political veteran served as president from 1985 to 1990 after a military dictatorship gave up power.

Uruguay enters the Mercosur customs union with Argentina, Brazil and Paraguay in 1995. The trade bloc is considered crucial for Uruguay's free market economic program.

"My task is to transform Uruguay from a national economy into a regional economy," Sanguinetti, a 58-year-old attorney and former journalist, told jubilant supporters Monday.

President Luis Lacalle was forbidden by law from seeking a consecutive term.

Sanguinetti will have to work closely with his rivals. His Colorado Party failed to win a majority in the 30-member Senate, taking only 10 seats — the same as Lacalle's National Party. The leftist Progressive Encounter coalition won nine seats.

Officers fine-tune conflict resolution skill over break

By Michael J. Doyle
Staff Writer

The University of Maine Public Safety Department is gearing up — to go back to school.

"When Christmas vacations come around, we just don't kick back and drink coffee," Lt. Mike Zubik said.

Starting on Dec. 10, the entire police department will undergo a series of refresher courses in the latest techniques of law enforcement, he said.

Under state law, every law enforcement officer must partake in a minimum of 40 hours of training per year, Zubik said.

One of these courses involves the management of aggressive behavior by teaching officers how to counter potentially explosive situations, he said.

"The person that wins a fight is the person who does not have to fight," Officer Bob Norman said.

The eight-hour course is presented by Officers Norman and Scott Welch to small groups of up to six fellow officers in the Lengyl Gym.

The class is designed to familiarize officers with the laws concerning the use of non-deadly and deadly force. It also instructs the trainees in appropriate responses to the threat of force often confronted in the line of duty, he said.

The logistics of the course include film shows, lectures and interactive, hands-on roleplaying, Norman added.

He said in the course, pupils are instructed on how to recognize and evaluate a threat and then utilize verbal and body language to calm the situation without "laying hands on."

Sometimes the application of force cannot be avoided, he said, but this must always be tempered and measured by current court rules and the policies of the department. It is designed to sharpen an officer's instincts in making decision about when to use force and the safest way to use it.

The practical part of the program includes instruction in the application of physical restraint and escort techniques, such as handcuffing, Norman said. Also, the officers are instructed in the operation of oleo resin capricum (pepper spray) and control techniques with the side-handle baton. Pepper spray attacks the mucus membranes causing temporary blindness.

Every officer is obliged to pass a written and practical test on psycho-motor testing, involving situations where an officer can use psychological methods to overcome violent people, he said.

Another course taught over the vacation involves a much more recent hazard-contamination from blood-borne pathogens.

This is the threat posed to officer's health from any disease carried by bodily fluids, he said. The most obvious concern here is HIV. However, hepatitis B and tuberculosis are also extremely dangerous and more common hazards. Airborne viruses are also a big concern.

"For instance, if someone throws up in a bathroom, Campus Living has to bring in a special team to clean it up," he said.

When uniforms become stained from contact with blood, they are sent to a specialist to be decontaminated, he said. Police cruisers cannot be used after vomit or blood is spilled until the vehicle is decontaminated.

In the trunk of every police cruiser, there are special disposable "space suits" that cover the entire body. These are for use in dire situations where multiple casualties and a lot of blood is likely to be encountered, he said.

Norman also will be directing a course in hazardous material handling in conjunction with Steve Bunker of the Maine State Police. Under state law, every institution of a certain size, such as the University of Maine, is obligated to educate all its staff on how to deal with chemical substances.

"This course teaches the participants to decipher chemical codes and the appropriate safety measures to enact," he said.

In light of this, Norman concluded, Public Safety is probably the best-prepared and most well-trained law enforcement agency in the state.

Housing

"The criteria will be partly income of the renter and partly how much money the landlord is currently making from the property," Casciotti said.

Orono is competing with 30 other towns in six counties for funds from the Housing Assistance program. It has a total budget of $2,825,000. Orono is the only town seeking money for rental housing.

"Orono has an excellent chance of getting funds," Bush said.

Under the program, the town will seek a 10 percent contribution from the landlord and will probably set a maximum profit level for the property at 8 percent to 12 percent.

Also, if the community grants money to a landlord, they must agree to keep renting to lower-income people and not raise rents other than rent plus inflation for five years. If the landlord sells the property before the time limit, they will have to pay back a certain percentage, depending on the amount of time passed.

In 1982, Orono ran a successful rental housing rehabilitation program in which approximately 30 buildings were restored.

Five of the 20 owners who received notices saying their buildings were in need of repair have already expressed interest in the program.

Attean charged the fraternity with "blatant racism."

"UMO has a history of condoning and ignoring racist behaviors on this campus. We ask once and for all for the university to take a stand against racism by revoking this fraternity's charter and by establishing clear anti-racist policies for student conduct throughout the University of Maine System," Attean said in the press release.

Attean warned that if the administration at UMaine did not take action, IRATE would file a civil lawsuit with the Department of Education.

"We are confident the university is sincere in their efforts," Attean said.

William Kennedy, director of Judicial Affairs, confirmed the university was looking in to the matter seriously.

"The police report was referred to me and is under investigation," Kennedy said. He did mention the timing of the incident had slowed progress.

"It (the report) got to me Wednesday (Nov. 23) and everyone had gone for break," Kennedy said. He added he will be speaking to people this week in order to get to the bottom of the issue.

Dean William Lucy of Student Activities called the story "old news" when approached by a Maine Campus reporter but added the fraternity "was very sorry this happened."

"They sent a written letter of apology to IRATE and feel badly about (the party)," Lucy said.

"We are really sorry if we offended anybody," Mike Diamantopoulos, the current president of Phi Eta Kappa, said, adding the fraternity maintains that no one dressed up as Native Americans at the party.

"Two individuals dressed in outfits late at night after the main party. No one dressed up at the party," Diamantopoulos said, adding the party ended at 11 p.m. "They acted on their own," he said.

Attean received the letter of apology but was not satisfied.

"It is a pseudo-apology," Attean said. IRATE has not contacted the fraternity since the night of the party.

"We've had all the dialogue we're going to have with them," Attean said. "They've proved that they can't be trusted."

for recommendation. The final decision rests with the president's council. The Traffic and Safety Committee meeting is scheduled for late December or sometime in January.

"In my opinion, it is a good idea," Travis Lazarczyk, a student representative on the Traffic and Safety Committee, said. "I don't know how much faculty uses it, and it seems like a more high active place for students."

The student representatives on the committee distributed a copy of the resolution to other members before break. The members were encouraged to check out the area and talk to students before their next meeting where they will discuss the resolution. Students are encouraged to go to the meeting to express their support.

"If faculty does use them, it will be left as is. If not, the spaces could change," Lazarczyk said.

Two other lots were recently changed to accommodate more student parking by the committee. Students in Hart Hall received 40 overnight spaces by the Memorial Gym. York Hall students may also receive new spaces, Vinnie Daigle, a student representative to the committee, said.

"I'm hoping it passes. It has the student senate support," Daigle said.

LeBlond stated teachers can basically park anywhere they want, so it is not necessary for them to have so much parking.

"Students could have extra spaces but it would mean Public Safety would have a few less tickets," LeBlond said.

World AIDS Day to help raise awareness of disease

By Yolanda Sly
Staff Writer

Thursday, Dec. 1 marks the seventh annual World AIDS Day, as designated by the World Health Organization. The day is observed and celebrated around the world as well as at the University of Maine.

The goal of World AIDS Day is to strengthen the worldwide effort to stop the spread of HIV/AIDS through education and to encourage understanding, compassion and hope, Sheri Cousins, program coordinator at the Cutler Health Center, said.

"We hope to help make a difference in stopping the spread of AIDS and HIV," Cousins said. "We're concerned about how friends and colleagues are effected by this virus and disease. We hope to help the world take a look at the issues and challenges those who face AIDS and HIV experience."

In Maine, the number of reported AIDS cases has increased steadily since 1984. By March of 1994, 504 cases of AIDS had been diagnosed, according to HIV/AIDS Surveillance at the Division of Disease Control in the Maine Department of Human Services.

UMaine will celebrate World AIDS Day as the Poetry Free Zone focuses on AIDS Day in the Honors Center at noon., Heather Kenney, a Peer Educator, said.

In the Union information tables will be set up to give away safe sex packages along with free condoms, Kenney said.

On Thursday, in the Union's Totman Lounge, "Talking to Children about AIDS and HIV" will be presented by SHARE and the Peer Educators.

"The program is geared to helping people talk to children about AIDS and HIV on their level, and what they need to know about the disease," Kenney said. "People who talk to children about AIDS and HIV need to be educated before talking to children."

An AIDS summit will take place at 3:30 p.m. in Wells Commons Lounge.

"All student service organizations are coming together to discuss what we've done in relation to AIDS awareness, what we hope to accomplish and as a whole come up with priorities on what we want to accomplish with the help of the World AIDS Day committee," Kenney said.

A candlelight vigil will be held in front of the library.

"At this time, all around the world lights out occurs for 15 minutes, and a candlelight vigil begins in remembrance and support of the people and families dealing with HIV and AIDS," Kenney said.

Lecture discusses Julia, Emelie Melville's impact on theater

By Michelle M. Curtain
Staff Writer

Emelie Melville made her debut on stage when she was only six months old in a play called "The Blessed Baby."

The play was a success with "even the baby entering the spirit of the play and displaying dramatic ability," as noted in an 1850 review. Emelie got the role because the doll that had been used to portray the baby had been misplaced.

This was one of many stories told by John Moring in his discussion titled "Actress, teacher: The influence of Julia and Emelie Melville on the American Theater" as he spoke to a small crowd Tuesday afternoon.

In his discussion, Moring explained that Julia was Emelie's mother and herself an actress and a singer. They came to New York from Britain because theatrical opportunities were greater in the United States. For the next 18 years, Emelie appeared regularly on the New York stage.

As Emelie's career was growing, Moring explained, Julia's marriage not only ended but she lost her singing voice, which had kept her steadily employed. Two years later the two sailed to San Francisco where "there was a tremendous thrust" for entertainment, Moring said.

Emelie's career continued successfully with such roles as Juliet in "Romeo and Juliet" opposite of Edwin Booth and playing the lead in "La Traviata."

During this time Julia opened a school "For elocution and dramatic arts," Moring said.

Her students were taught how to walk, stand and manage their voices. Girls were taught how to curtsy and train for popular roles such as Juliet and Ophelia. Boys were taught the parts of Romeo and Laertes.

As a teacher, "she was a woman in a field largely dominated by men," he said.

Nevertheless, he noted that she was widely respected in the west, citing that people came from beyond the Bay Area to work under her.

"Most of what we know from Julia Melville's school we know from Katherine Corcoran," he said.

Corcoran was one of her many students that would bring Melville's teachings into the twentieth century.

Arthur Hill, who was a student of Melville in the 1890s, appeared in at least one western. Another student, Gertrude Lansing, later known as Nance O'Neill, had a stage career of 53 years. She appeared in four silent films including "The Count of Monte Cristo," and at age 80 she appeared on a TV show titled "Criminals at Large."

Moring went on to explain that Emelie made a career change when she founded the Emelie Melville Opera Company. During this time of traveling world-wide for 13 years, she lost her singing voice. She eventually returned to San Francisco. She was later known as "the grand old lady of the San Francisco stage," Moring said.

In 1927, Emelie did a radio performance in which she read from "Hamlet." In 1929, she was in a movie called "Illusion."

"Together, Julia and Emelie Melville appeared on stage for a period of over 90 years," Moring said.

Julia died in 1914, and Emelie died in 1932. "A woman acting was doing something that was beyond the role of normal women (of that time)," Moring said.

"Actresses did not rate in high society. It was an immoral profession," he said, explaining that actresses were seen as prostitutes.

He noted that it was also this point in time where a few people "were pushing the (views) of women on stage."

Moring recently finished a book on Arthur Hill who was one of Julia Melville's students. Through this work, Moring pursued the work of the Melvilles. This summer he received a grant from the Women in the Curriculum so that he could go to San Francisco to continue researching the Melvilles.

The event was part of the Women in the Curriculum Lunch Series.

KOLLEGE KULT KLASSIX KORNER

• "Godzilla" and more!

By Monique Gibouleau
Staff Writer

Up to this point, all of the great films in the Kollege Kult Klassix Korner have been rentals. As for this one, well, I don't even know if it can be rented but I still think it and its companion films are definitely in the Kollege Kult Klassix corner, so to speak. And it is free, and happens pretty frequently anyhow...you can guess if you want. (Don't worry, I'll give you a paragraph if you want? Can't wait huh? Well...OK.)

It's from those Creature Double Feature days...(drum roll) "GODZILLA VS. MONSTER ZERO" and it was free! It was on cable and it was a marathon and it was so cool! See, Godzilla is classic and is definitely cheezy and all that. And they are on TV all the time so you can generally watch them just about any time without even hitting a video store!

This particular one had a slew of good old Godzilla characters and nifty sci-fi technology and semi-cheezoid effects and an odd plot, as is expected in all Godzilla flicks. And it had Rodan too.

The plot is easy, yet it has a fruity flavor...oh yeah, sorry, thought I was reading the wine list again... So um, plot, yeah...

The plot is nifty. Astronauts are going to this newly discovered planet, located right behind Jupiter. (Just how we've missed a planet behind Jupiter I don't know, but we must have...) So one of the two Caucasians in the film is an astronaut (the other is a waiter) and the other is the Japanese portion of the mission. So they go to Planet X (how cliché) and they land and check for radiation then get out. Why they didn't check for air I don't know but anyway...

They find out that this planet is inhabited by people who (astonishingly) look just like humans!!! They are controlled by computers, though, and their civilization

Munro's "Open Secrets" shines through stories

By Randall Hackley
Associated Press Writer

Alice Munro writes with an elegance and easy pace that is deceptive until — pow! — she bushwhacks the reader nearly every time with a powerful ending.

Her newest book, < B> "Open Secrets" < D> (Knopf, $23), continues in the same literary vein as her previous six collections of short stories and a novel, "Lives of Girls and Women."

These eight stories demonstrate the Canadian author's range, from "The Albanian Virgin," about a woman traveling in central Europe who accidentally falls prey to a band of primitive villagers, to "The Jack Randa Hotel," a not-so-whimsical tale of two lovers' search halfway around the world for romance.

Most of the stories have a common thread:

members of the Doud family pop up in the oddest of circumstances in and around the dead-end Canadian town of Carstairs.

This book, however, is a story or two too long. That is to say, six stories are excellent, in particular "The Albanian Virgin," "The Jack Randa Hotel" and "A Wilderness Station." Each has twists of plot and character that best not be explained here.

Munro rightly deserves the accumulating praise in recent years for her fiction — the stories from "Open Secrets" were all previously published in The New Yorker magazine and The Paris Review. Her contemporaries have even suggested she might be the Chekhov of our time.

It's a bit early to write that, but Munro, author of "The Progress of Love" and "The Beggar Maid" among other collections, has assembled quite a resume of entertaining tales.

Godzilla

is plagued by Monster Zero, (everything there has a number), the Hydra. They want to borrow Godzilla and Rodan from the Earth to battle the Hydra, which breathes out lightning by the way, and is pretty ugly and flies.

In exchange, these Planet X people will give the people of Earth a formula for a drug that will cure all diseases. Naturally, Earth says 'sure!' (We never learn...)

So the Controller people go to Earth and get the monsters in a display of really funny models and neat special effects. They also bring with them the two astronauts and their head guy from the space place in Japan. They all reach Planet X and the battle begins.

Naturally, it is a little wacky, like, we're not talking all too realistic (this is no Jurassic Park after all.) Godzilla and his radiation halitosis combined with the cool aerial combat skills of Rodan the flying dinosaur-looking-thing drive away Monster Zero, the Hydra. It is an event celebrated, well, as well as people who don't really have emotions can celebrate things. The astronauts decide to poke around and naturally get suspicious and in trouble but everyone gets home OK, bringing with them the formula for the magic medicine.

There is a big press deal where the formula will be played for the whole world (oh, what a total fantasy, sharing the formula with the whole world at a press conference.) So they play it and it says...(drum roll) "Citizens of Earth you have two days to surrender your planet to us or else we'll destroy it. By the way, thanks for the monsters, we reprogrammed them so they'll kill you all. Over and out." Or something to that basic effect.

Well, you can guess that this causes a bit of distress among the citizens of Earth. Too bad. The X people come and take everything over. The end.

Ha ha, just kidding. There's a subplot!

There is an inventor dating the Japanese astronaut's sister. He makes this toy that makes a great deal of really annoying noise. The aliens have been on Earth for a while and they buy the blueprints for it because it hurts them badly when it makes that nasty sound.

Well, the inventor winds up saving the day, and the space center people manage to intercept the brain control waves from the computer with some funky technology and the world is perhaps not disease free, but at least not a colony of Planet X. Well, now I've spoiled it all for you, but there are dozens of Godzilla movies, so you can watch another one with about the same result...

Just check your local listings and look for the next Godzilla flick and watch it. Grab some popcorn and a friend and you'll be all set to last out the winter, warmed by Godzilla's radioactive breath. It could be better than a fireplace.

The bad news...

By Malcolm Smith

The good news is that there is less than three weeks worth of classes left before finals, and then break. The bad news is that there is less than three weeks worth of classes left before finals, and then break.

It feels weird when the end of classes puts the same twinge of excitement in your stomach that Christmas once did when you were a child, or perhaps the good thing is that you feel that excitement at all. When it starts to disappear, you are in trouble.

This Jeffrey Dahmer story took a wild twist, didn't it? It seems like truth is stranger than fiction — just watch the news. It seems that some stories just know how to play themselves out. Another case for folklore, and a Time-Life book series.

The entire Dahmer incident was a truly startling look into people's dark sides. We saw the results of a man gone horribly wrong, and the acts he committed, clips of his sentencing showing victim's family members trying to express the rage that only someone in their positions could feel, and now, in the last chapter, we see his victim's families again, some expressing happiness and glee, some saying that his death really proved nothing. Some just say it is the order of natural selection at work. No matter how you weigh it up, it will probably jack up the asking price of the apartment where Dahmer lived.

Tom Hanrahan is gone from "Media Watch" — gone after a final dispute. Members of the regular panel seemed to indicate a few weeks ago that the show itself might disappear. That sure would be a shame. Shows produced by Maine public television such as "Made in Maine" really only go so far, and "Maine Watch" is a great contribution, but "Media Watch" really has created its own niche and seemingly wide-ranging viewership. No more "Made in Maine," please.

On top of all this, counter-culture hero Jerry Rubin is dead, killed while crossing the street. What an uneventful way to go. You survive the '60's, only to be killed while showing your opposition to the establishment by jaywalking. It somehow does not seem very fitting.

Jesse Helms. Now, there is one scary person. One wonders if he really knows what he is saying. The first problem with his mouthiness is that the voting public has sent a pretty clear message that it wants change, and spending your time taking pokes at your opponents does nothing to change anything. Then there is the fact that he has spoken of threats against the president's safety if he were to visit any military base in North Carolina. Perhaps Jesse or his generation does not realize how disillusioning it is having a president blown away, while the government spoon feeds its citizens a truth they thought we could handle. One wonders if JFK was threatened in such a way before he was killed in Dallas. Probably not. Jesse Helms was 30 years younger then, and perhaps not showing so many signs of senility.

Now, for the good news...

Service for who?

By Jeannie Blancq

After spending four months off campus in my first apartment, I learned the multiple terrors of communal living.

With four young women in a two bedroom apartment, everyone is forced to make sacrifices and learn to compromise.

Some people are obviously better at this than others.

After discovering that none of us were very good at communicating and wouldn't budge, I was out of energy and at a loss about what to do.

First I contacted a legal service for students and low income families, who told me my income was too high to qualify me.

What income? I am a full-time college student.

After contemplating strangling someone, I was informed that we had a Student Legal Services office and thought I was good to go.

Wrong! I called and explained my case to them and was told that I was ineligible because my case involved other undergraduate students and that would be a conflict of interest.

Well, my next question was, "Why am I paying a mandatory activity fee then?"

Every student pays this fee and that is why it would be a conflict of interest, but how many students are going to have legal problems that don't involve other students?

Ironically, my roommates wanted me out as much as I wanted to leave. They went so far as to call my parents and tell them they had kicked me out but that they still needed my rent.

So all four of us wanted me off the lease, but student legal services would not help.

Eventually I found a sub-letter and again I called Student Legal Services to get help on drawing up a lease that all of us agreed on so no one would get screwed.

Again I was denied a service that I paid for, as well as my roommates and our new sub-letter when it was agreed on by all of us.

What exactly are we paying for? I know that is a commonly asked question on a college campus, but in this instance everyone pays for a service that few use.

I know it does benefit some people because one of my roommates has used it to her advantage.

Everyone pays for Cutler Health Services, but how many people graduate without ever using their services? Everyone pays for a sports pass, but how many people graduate without ever having attended a sporting event?

According to Shellie Batuski, the lawyer at Student Legal services, they have a high volume of clients and are constantly busy.

When I discussed doing this column, no one that I talked to had even heard of Student Legal Services, and those who had didn't even know where it was. Most didn't even know they paid for it.

Last year the Student Senate came close to cutting the funds for Student Legal Services, and as far as I am concerned, full speed ahead.

Not many benefit from their existence and I'd be willing to bet they turn away many.

I tried to use the services that I had a right to and was turned away. Why do I continue to pay for something that I will never use?

So I want to say thank-you to Student Legal Services. You could have saved me one month's rent, messages and mail, but all's well that ends well.

In the Nov. 16 story on the Orono Town Council, Kathy Tyson said that many councilors want to use the excess fund balance right away. It should have said "councils," not councilors.

On The Record...

"I should come down there and kick your fucking ass, you ball-less little prick."

-Mike Diamantopoulos, Phi Eta Kappa, to Maine Campus editor F.J. Gallagher, on the story alleging a racist party at the fraternity.

"Dahmer had a death wish, and I know that he didn't have the gumption to do it himself, so I had predicted that the day would come when he would be killed in prison."

-Gerald Boyle, convicted murderer Jeffrey Dahmer's attorney, Monday, on his client's death in prison.

"Our goal is to have them back in Somerset by Christmas."

-Scott Anchors, director of Campus Living, on the planned return of students to the north wing, 4th floor of Somerset Hall.

"It's obviously a deteriorating situation and our only hope is that at some point the parties recognize that there's no use in continuing the kind of carnage that is going on there."

-White House Chief of Staff Leon Panetta, on his assessment of the situation in Bosnia, Monday.

• Column response

To the Editor

In response to the guest column "Just who is Chris?" (11/21); perhaps Mr. Peary should spend less time blowing his own horn, and more time at his drawing board. Good comic strips should be able to effectively convey their messages without an instruction manual, let alone one from the cartoonist.

• Thank-you

To the Editor

On behalf of the United Way, VOICE (VOLunteers In Community Efforts) extends a sincere thank-you to everyone who helped make Fast Day '94 a success. Together you raised over $2000 for United Way charities, more than doubling the student contribution of last year.

The following individuals and groups assisted with Fast Day:

John Lewis, Director of Dining Services, Residents On Campus, Diana LaChance at the MaineCard Office, Phi Kappa Sigma, 20th Maine, Delta Zeta, All Maine Women, Senior Skulls, Sophomore Owls, Alpha Phi Omega, Kiersten Littlefield, Jenny Moulton, Dean William Lucy, Student Activities, and Carole LeClair, Student Activities.

We extend a special thank-you to the 1,000 students who donated a meal to the United Way. Your contribution is greatly appreciated and will be used to serve the community.

• Maine card questions

To the Editor

I was wondering if anyone out there can explain the Maine Card system and how it works. I have been told that you can use your id number up to five times before you have your number shut off and you have to get a card. Then I have also been told that you have to have it shut off any time you don't have a card.

If the first way is really true, then why can't I eat when I have forgotten my Maine Card. I should be able to give them my number and they punch it in. Seems pretty easy. If the second way is true, what happens when a person loses their card on Friday night? Does that mean a person can't eat the entire weekend? Doesn't seem like a good plan to me.

If anyone out there could please explain how the university works the system, it would be very helpful.

Still hungry,

• Burning questions

To the Editor

I have been noticing that the Orono Fire Department has been receiving a lot of credit for their performance in the Somerset fire. I, as a resident of Somerset, was wondering why they are receiving this credit. It seemed to me that the fire department, who always harps that we the students should treat each fire alarm like it is the real thing, didn't treat this the same way.

They first arrived on the scene with one small truck and no one dressed in fire fighting gear. It seemed as though they thought it was just another false alarm and all they had to do was shut off the system. Then, about 10-20 minutes later, the larger trucks showed up.

The fire department did a good job when they arrived full strength to the scene, but the time it took them to get there I believe cost the university more money that it should have. I have been told that the fire department also started to send crews suited up to alarms after the fire, something that was not happening before the fire. If anyone from the fire department wishes to respond to this letter, please do so. I would like to know what occurred from the fire department's perspective. Maybe there are events that I don't know about, but it seemed that the fire department was not taking the fire as seriously as they should have.

Your Daily Horoscope

By Patric Walker

For Wednesday, November 30

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: Fate is an expensive schoolmaster, but the fees are well worth it if what you learn makes you happier or wiser. What takes place now is neither chance nor coincidence but the planets' way of telling you to reach for goals you never knew existed.

ARIES (March 21 - April 19): Planetary activity enables you to overcome all obstacles as well as any resentments concerning joint financial or property arrangements. Settle your differences and enjoy the benefits that cooperation and shared endeavors can bring.

TAURUS (April 20 - May 20): It can be extremely difficult to deflect you from your chosen course of action. Make sure that any decisions taken now are the right ones, not just for yourself, but also for partners, loved ones and close companions.

GEMINI (May 21 - June 20): You're entering what could turn out to be an extremely decisive period for professional matters and are in no mood to hang out. Take care, however, that you don't come on too strong now and alienate those who could easily become your allies.

CANCER (June 21 - July 22): There's so much activity in the part of our solar chart related to affairs of the heart, you're certain to be in the right place at the right time. So, why not jump in at the deep end and figure out your professional responsibilities later on?

LEO (July 23 - Aug. 22): Having overcome difficulties on the domestic front, you're now ready to focus on the lighter side of life. Planetary activity suggests that not only is this possible but absolutely essential in order to recharge your badly depleted reserves of strength.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 - Sept. 22): Any change of strategy on your part should cause a bit of a stir on the home front, and others will no doubt label you cool and calculating. A magnificent aspect between Jupiter and Pluto, however, signifies you should stick to your guns come what may.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 - Oct. 22): Those who know you well are aware of your inner conflicts and realize how hard you strive for the good things in life. With Mercury now entering the optimistic sign of Sagittarius, you should find it easy to talk your way around even the most complex situations.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 - Nov. 21): If a financial crisis is to be avoided, you must take strict control of the purse strings. Fortunately, because Mercury is now passing through the area of your solar chart which governs matters, others are as eager to find a solution as you are.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 - Dec. 21): The only thing to fear is fear itself. If you allow such a negative emotion to rule your life, nothing will ever seem quite right. Be brave and take chances and you may find there's nothing to be afraid of after all.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 - Jan. 19): The influence of Jupiter and Pluto in Scorpio reminds you that the personal and professional rewards you seek are well within your reach. You've earned the right to bask in the sunlight - so why are you still hiding in the shadows?

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 - Feb. 18): You probably feel you aren't ready to take that first step into the unknown. Positive influences signify that what lies ahead will more than compensate for any disappointments you may have suffered recently.

PISCES (Feb. 19 - MARCH 20): Pisceans are often described as gentle, sensitive individuals. Now that Mercury is passing through the mid-heaven of your solar chart, however, colleagues are likely to see that, when the chips are down, you can be as ambitious as the next.

For Thursday, December 1

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: The clarity of your thinking may astound those who have only witnessed your restless side. Having made headway with intensely personal problems, you must concentrate on impressing others with your determination to see things through to the end.

ARIES (March 21 - April 19): It would be easy to leave your troubles behind you and set off for sunnier climates but a change of scenery won't necessarily bring a change of fortune. You would be wiser to remain where you are and face highly sensitive or emotional issues head-on.

TAURUS (April 20 - May 20): Certain situations seem difficult because you've been reluctant to discuss long-term issues or renegotiate terms. Swallow your pride and meet colleagues halfway, otherwise you'll only have yourself to blame if a current deal falls through.

GEMINI (May 21 - June 20): If, after hearing your sound advice, partners still seem intent on building castles in the air, there's little you can do except be around to pick up the pieces. Remind them that the greatest success is not in never falling, but in rising each time they fall.

CANCER (June 21 - July 22): It's unlikely you feel completely relaxed and self-assured at the moment. Bide your time and continue to believe that some sort of change in the working partners of your life is the answer to your prayers.

LEO (July 23 - Aug. 22): You're probably disheartened and disappointed that your more creative projects have suffered a few set backs. Fortunately, planetary influences should now provide the impetus to get things moving again.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 - Sept. 22): After a long period of upheavals, the planets now promise a smoother ride. In particular, you should have little trouble persuading loved ones and family members that your ideas aren't only worth listening to, they're worth acting upon as well.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 - Oct. 22): To accept something as a fact of life is to receive it willingly. If you find a way to freely accept what others are saying you should find that the upsets of the past six months have increased your strength and wisdom.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 - Nov. 21): You should have less faith in others and a great deal more in yourself. Partners will be impressed and amazed by your ability to take the bull by the horns over financial matters and turn even adverse influences to your own advantage.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 - Dec. 21): You've probably had to eat humble pie lately or paid dearly for an error of judgement. Planetary activity, however, should enable you to make amends and bring new opportunity your way.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 - Jan. 19): Even though there's little doubt someone has done everything to take the wind out of your sails, you're urged to let bygones be bygones. Whether you do or not depends on your feeling of self-worth. Concentrate on boosting your confidence and self-assurance.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 - Feb. 18): It's time to put your anxieties to one side and help others see the light at the end of the tunnel. Your optimism over one particular dream is likely to prove so infectious that offers of support arrive from the most unlikely places.

PISCES (Feb. 19 - March 20): Rarely have your instincts been so accurate. However, although projects may appear attractive on the surface, the details aren't nearly as straightforward as others would have your believe. Check facts and figures before making a commitment.

Black Bears dump No. 1 BU in OT

By Larry Rogers Jr.
Sports Editor

Roll on.

That's exactly what the UMaine hockey team did Sunday night. The Black Bears upset the Boston University Terriers, ranked No. 1 in this week's WMEB poll (which came out before the game), 6-5 in overtime. It was their fifth straight win, extending their unbeaten streak to 13 games.

It was sophomore center Dan Shermerhorn's unassisted goal 2:43 into the extra period that lifted Maine to their third Great Western Freezeout championship in as many tries. The Black Bears had previously won the Freezeout title during the '91-'92 and '92-'93 seasons.

Maine improved their overall record to 10-0-3, and could arguably be called the best team in the country. The Terriers of BU saw their overall record dip to 7-2-2.

Shermerhorn took advantage of a defensive breakdown by BU, after Terrier defenseman Chris Kelleher turned over the puck in Maine's attack zone. Shermerhorn sailed a shot past BU goalie Derek Herlofsky, scoring his team-leading eighth goal of the season, leading the Black Bears to victory.

Maine's senior defenseman Dave MacIsaac sent the game into overtime, scoring on a rebound off a Jacques Rodrique shot, with just 24 seconds remaining in regulation. The Black Bears had been on a 6-on-4 after BU's Doug Wood was penalized for interference with 2:26 remaining and they pulled goalie Blair Allison for an extra skater.

Shermerhorn gave Maine a 1-0 lead just 1:42 into the second period, after neither team could manage a goal in the opening period. But the Terriers stormed back with three unanswered goals, taking a 3-1 lead with 6:07 left in the second.

Brad Purdie answered for Maine, scoring his fourth goal of the year, to cut the lead to 3-2 with 3:37 left in the second. However, BU's Mike Sylvia notched his first goal of the year, extending the Terriers lead to 4-2 with only 59 seconds remaining in the second.

The Black Bears, who have staged a number of third period comebacks this season, once again came back and tied the score at 4-4 after getting goals from Wayne Conlan and Tony Frenette less than four minutes apart into the third period. The Terriers' Ken Rausch responded with a goal three minutes later to put BU back in the driver's seat.

The Terriers held onto the 5-4 advantage for 12 minutes and 36 seconds before MacIsaac tied the contest.

Senior defenseman Chris Imes dished out four assists in the game, he now has 15 points (2-13) to lead the team.

Allison turned away 22 BU shots and won his 10th game, while Herlofsky stopped 27 of 33 Maine scoring attempts.

Maine Hockey Notebook: Dan Shermerhorn has been one of the hottest Black Bears of late. The sophomore forward has scored six goals in his last seven games, including three in the Great Western Freezeout. Shermerhorn is now only two goals shy of matching his entire '93-'94 total of 10.

•The Black Bears can definitely be called the Road Warriors, considering they have played 10 of their 13 games on the road, winning seven and tying three.

•Four players have now amassed at least 10 points for Maine, along with Imes' earlier mentioned point total, they are Jeff Tory (2-10-12), Jacques Rodrique (6-4-10) and

Bowl games to decide champion

By Rick Warner
AP Football Writer

History will be on Miami's side when the fourth-ranked Hurricanes play No. 1 Nebraska in the Orange Bowl.

The Hurricanes are 62-1 on their home field over the past decade, while the Cornhuskers have lost five straight at the Orange Bowl, including three to Miami by a combined 76-33.

"To play Nebraska here in the Orange Bowl is a goal we've had all year," Miami coach Dennis Erickson said. "We're happy to have the opportunity to play one of the great teams in country."

The six coalition bowls finalized their matchups Monday, six days ahead of schedule. They decided not to wait for Saturday's Southeastern Conference championship game between No. 3 Alabama and No. 6 Florida because the outcome probably won't cause a major shakeup in the rankings.

"If there was any chance of that happening, we would have waited," said Keith Tribble, executive director of the Orange Bowl. "But since we don't think it will, we decided to make it official and give everybody more time to plan their trips."

It's No. 7 Florida State vs. the Alabama-Florida winner in the Sugar, Texas Tech vs. No. 21 Southern Cal in the Cotton, and No. 5 Colorado vs. Notre Dame in the Fiesta. No. 17 Virginia Tech will play Tennessee in the Gator, and No. 18 North Carolina will face Texas in the Sun.

For the second straight year, an undefeated Nebraska team will play for the national championship in the Orange Bowl. Last year, the No. 2 Cornhuskers lost to No. 1 Florida State 18-16.

Nebraska, the Big Eight champion, is 12-0. Big East champion Miami (10-1) has won eight straight since losing to Washington on Sept. 24, a defeat that snapped the Hurricanes' record 58-game home winning streak.

Erickson said Nebraska's defensive speed will pose a challenge for the Hurricanes.

"They're much better on defense than they have been," he said. "In the past they've been known for their offense, but now they have one of the best defenses in the country."

Athlete of the Week

Casey Arena, junior guard men's basketball

Casey Arena has been named this week's Athlete of the Week. Arena turned in an impressive performance out at the Shootout Spokane Tournament in Spokane, Washington, where he was named MVP of the tourney. In the opener, a 74-66 victory over Yale, Arena poured in 19 points and handed out five assists. In the championship game, the six-foot junior pumped in a game-high 23 points, leading the Bears to a 2nd place finish (Maine lost 66-57 to host team Gonzaga). The point guard also made six steals over the two-game set.

Arena, a native of Beverly, Mass., led the Black Bears in scoring and assists last season and will be counted on to do much of the same this season.

Editor's Note: Athlete of the Week is selected by the Campus sports staff each week. Other finalists included Dan Shermerhorn (ice hockey), Stephanie Guidi (women's basketball) and Chris Imes (ice hockey).

49ers NFL West Champs

By Dave Goldberg
AP Football Writer

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The San Francisco 49ers are back at their accustomed spot, NFC West champions for the 11th time in 14 years with more — they hope — to come.

So what if there were a few stumbles and fumbles on the way.

Steve Young threw for 281 yards and four touchdowns Monday night, overcoming a pair of seemingly costly fumbles as the 49ers beat New Orleans 35-14 to become the first NFL team to clinch a playoff spot this season.

More important, it kept the Niners (10-2) on top of Dallas (10-2) for the home-field advantage on their inevitable course toward a third straight NFC title game. San Francisco, which won for the seventh straight time, would get the home field if both teams win out because it beat the Cowboys two weeks ago.

Young, who had completed 68.2 percent of his passes entering the game, was 24 of 30 as he hit four TD passes in a game for the fourth time this season.

He threw first-half touchdowns of 4 yards each to Brent Jones and John Taylor, found Jones again from 6 yards out on a drive that consumed 9:02 at the start of the second half and capped the scoring with a 43-yarder on a slant to backup Nate Singleto.

That was enough to negate Tyrone Hughes' 86-yard return of a fumble by Ricky Waters for the Saints (4-8) and a second-quarter fumble by Young at the Saints' 12 that held the Niners to a 20-14 lead at halftime.

San Francisco now has won 10 or more games for 12 straight seasons and qualified for the playoffs in 11 of them, missing only in 1991 despite a 10-6 record.

This year's team, however, is one rebuilt by the signing of a half-dozen veterans to bolster a defense that can stop Dallas. The latest newcomer, Tim Harris, got a sack Monday night in his first game under a contract that pays him $5,000 each time he dumps the quarterback.

The Niners led 20-14 at the half, but it might have been more if not for those two San Francisco fumbles.

But Hughes also contributed to San Francisco's scoring, fumbling a punt on his own 7 late in the first quarter, a play that led to the Niners' first TD.

San Francisco took a 3-0 lead on its first possession on Doug Brien's 40-yard field goal.

The Niners' made it 10-0 with 10 seconds left in the first period on Young's TD pass to Jones after Hughes' fumble and appeared to be heading for a 17-0 lead when Young fumbled as he was scrambling to the Saints' 12 and Jimmy Spencer recovered.

One play later, Jim Everett hit Michael Haynes for 52 yards to the San Francisco 36, leading eventually to Mario Bates' 3-yard TD run that made it 10-7. But Dexter Carter's 45-

•Goalie Blair Allison, who has started and played the majority of minutes in all 13 of Maine's games, is on pace to break the UMaine record for most games played in a season by a goaltender. Scott King (87-88) holds the record of 33 games. He could also make a bid for wins (25).

•Sophomore forward Trevor Roenick made as swift recovery of a knee injury he suffered nearly a month ago and returned the Black Bear lineup for both games in Los Angeles.

•Coach Shawn Walsh commented on the resilience of the Black Bears, who just never seem to quit.

"They're a very determined group," said Walsh Tuesday evening. "But the bottom line is we detest losing. We don't want to lose, which is exactly what you've got to do against BU...They're playing situational hockey, when we're down we open it up a little more, and when we're ahead we close the door."

Bowe slugs Donald at conference

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) — Heavyweights Riddick Bowe and Larry Donald, who will meet Saturday night at Caesars Palace in Las Vegas, got into a brief fight Monday at a Forum news conference.

The boxers were fielding questions from reporters when the incident occurred, according to John Beyrooty, the director of public relations for Forum Boxing.

"All during the question-and-answer period, they had been mumbling to each other," Beyrooty said. "But it wasn't necessarily an exchange of insults or derogatory comments, more like boastful talk."

All of a sudden, Beyrooty said, Bowe threw a short left hand and then a right. Both punches struck Donald near the mouth.

"I didn't see the left because I was blocked by Bowe," Beyrooty said. "Everyone told me about it. But I did see the right. It landed flush on Donald's jaw."

Donald appeared to be more surprised than hurt, Beyrooty said, although he was bleeding from the inside of his mouth.

Beyrooty said that immediately following the punches, representatives of both fighters separated the pair.

"This was the first time in all the years that I've gone to these kind of press conferences that a guy was actually hit," Beyrooty said.

Bowe expressed no remorse afterward, Beyrooty said, adding that Donald left the press conference almost immediately after the incident but Bowe stayed around to answer more questions.

"Heck, no," Bowe said when asked if he regretted throwing the punches.

Bowe, 27, and Donald, also 27, are fighting for Donald's WBC Continental Americas heavyweight title in a 12-round bout.

Donald is 16-0 with 12 knockouts. Bowe, 34-1 with 29 knockouts, beat Evander Holyfield on Nov. 13, 1992, to win the undisputed heavyweight championship, but lost to Holyfield in a rematch on Nov. 6, 1993.

Bowe's last fight was against Buster Mathis Jr. on Aug. 13 in Atlantic City. The bout was declared no contest because Bowe hit Mathis while he was down.

Jets prepare for Bledsoe

HEMPSTEAD, N.Y. (AP)—Dan Marino could have shot the sequel to "Ace Ventura, Pet Detective" during the time he had to pass against the New York Jets.

That presents a major problem for the Jets as they prepare for the new bombardier of the AFC East, Drew Bledsoe. If they give the New England quarterback as little trouble Sunday as they did against Marino last weekend, the Jets' playoff hopes could get another serious jolt.

Not only didn't the Jets sack Marino, they rarely pressured him. Only a few times did Marino have to avoid any rush. He did so easily and led Miami to a 28-24 comeback victory.

"We didn't put any pressure on him, but his throws also were incredible," defensive tackle Donald Evans said. "If you don't put pressure on a quarterback like that, he will have a great day. He will play like that."

Evans refused to admit concern about a pass rush that has 22 sacks, with 10 from the linebackers and secondary. He believes the performance against Miami was isolated, caused as much by the Dolphins' protection schemes and excellent blocking as anything the Jets didn't do.

"We didn't play to our abilities against them in the second half," Evans said. "But the Dolphins went out and did all the right things. Everything they did was perfect on their behalf. We just have to keep pressing on and make things happen."

49ers

yard kickoff return put the ball at the Saints' 49 and it took Young seven plays to make it 17-7 by hitting Taylor in the left corner.

It was about to be 24-7 with less than a minute left with the Niners at the New Orleans 9. But Watters, who finished with 104 yards in 26 carries, had the ball jarred loose by Sam Mills and Hughes, who returned a fumble for a TD last week and also has returned two punts for scores, picked it up at the 14 and zig-zagged to the end zone for his fourth TD of the year.

But even with 34 seconds left, the Niners were able to score, thanks in large part to a 20-yard completion from Young to Jerry Rice with a 15-yard late hit penalty tacked on.

Rice, who caught 16 passes last week against the Los Angeles Rams, finished with seven catches for 80 yards.

Bowls

The Sugar Bowl selected Florida State (9-1-1) to play the SEC champion, setting up a possible rematch against Florida (9-1-1). The Seminoles overcame a 28-point deficit in the fourth quarter Saturday to tie the Gators 31-31.

"If that (rematch) happens, we're billing it as 'Overtime and the Sugar Bowl,'" bowl president Chuck Zatarain said.

The alternative is an intriguing matchup between Alabama (11-0) and Florida State. Seminoles coach Bobby Bowden grew up in Alabama and dreamed of playing for the Crimson Tide, but he has never coached against his boyhood team.

"Either way, we'll get a great game," said Sugar Bowl executive director Troy Mathieu. "One way, we get an undefeated team with a legitimate shot at the national championship. The other way, we get to finish a fantastic game that started last Saturday."

Notre Dame's 6-4-1 record isn't so fantastic. However, coach Lou Holtz said the Irish deserve to play Colorado (10-1) in the Fiesta Bowl.

"If you take away the kicking game, I think we can play with anybody," Holtz said.

Notre Dame and Colorado met in the 1990 and 1991 Orange Bowls when the Buffaloes were No. 1. Colorado beat Notre Dame 10-9 in the 1991 game to win a share of the national championship. The previous year, the Irish won 21-6 to spoil the Buffaloes' bid for the national title.

Southern Cal (7-3-1) and Texas Tech (6-5) may need directions to get to the Cotton Bowl. The Trojans have never played there, and the Red Raiders are making their first trip since 1939.

Other bowl matchups: Rose (Penn State-Oregon); Citrus (Alabama-Florida loser vs. Ohio State); Peach (North Carolina State-Mississippi State); Hall of Fame (Wisconsin-Duke); Freedom (Arizona-Utah); Independence (Texas Christian-Virginia); Copper (Oklahoma-BYU); Alamo (Baylor-Washington State); Liberty (Illinois-East Carolina); Holiday (Michigan-Colorado State); Las Vegas (Central Michigan-UNLV); Carquest (South Carolina vs. West Virginia or Boston College); and Aloha (Kansas State vs. Boston College, West Virginia or Syracuse).
