The main reason for the decline in the job market, according to Sewall, is the recent economic recession. He said people are not looking for jobs because they are not confident in the economy. "During good times, there are plenty of jobs and everybody is taking jobs. During recessions, everybody goes back to school," Sewall said.

The study found that almost 62 percent of 1991 bachelor's degree graduates were employed in their first job following graduation. A non-binding referendum concerning the recreation center in the Memorial Union was also at the polls this week. The referendum asked if students should continue to pay the recreation center fee. Sex Matters

In honor of National Condom Week, this week’s Sex Matters will focus on the importance of consistently and correctly using condoms.

"Use a spermicide containing non-occlusive ingredients, such as cream, gel, foam, jelly or lubricant. This may reduce the risk of infection.

Infertility doctor accused of fathersharing patients’ kids

Alexandria, Va. (AP) — An infertility doctor on trial for allowing his patients to father their own children admitted Monday that he shared sperm with more than one client.

The doctor, Dr. William Jacobson, is accused of violating medical ethics by using his sperm to artificially inseminate several of his patients. He is on trial for 52 counts of fraud.

"I did it, and I said it. I’m a liar," Jacobson said in opening statements.

Jacobson’s lawyer, David Roth, said the doctor had no intention of misleading anyone.

"I believe that the evidence will show that Dr. Jacobson did not intend to mislead anyone," Roth said.

The trial, which began Monday, is expected to last several weeks.

Bush to campaign hard in New Hampshire

By Tom Raum
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — President Bush stepped up his New Hampshire campaigning from afar on Monday with calls to radio stations and newspaper, suggesting a strong victory in the first-in-the-nation primary will help him win the presidency.

"My final message is vote for me," Bush told the Telegraph in Nashua, in one of a series of early-morning phone calls from the White House.

He also donated Democratic proposals for a middle-class tax cut. "What the economy needs is laser-like stimulation. It doesn't need greater deficits," he told Manchester's Nashua Times.

Bush will formally announce his candidacy on Wednesday.

He will return to the campaign trail on Tuesday, making a speech and calling for the re-election of Democrat Patrick Leahy of Vermont.

White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said the added day reflects the "urgency" of the race.

President Bush, in an interview on Monday

Associated Press Writer

Bush, competing in Nashua, N.H., said Monday he believes "we've got a fighting chance" for success in New Hampshire, although he did not define what he meant by success.

"If that message is loud and clear coming from afar on Monday night in Iowa, I'm going to just do my best and see what happens," he said.

Bush made pitches for his economic recovery package in drive-time calls to Manchester radio stations WGIR and WFEA.

"When you're sitting down here trying to make some decisions affecting the whole country, I guess it would be nice not to have to be asked from the right," he said.

"But I'm getting attacked from the left every single day up there," he added, "so I don't know that it makes much difference."

DEE MINDS, Iowa (AP) — Sen. Tom Harkin scored a decisive home-state victory Saturday in the Iowa Democratic presidential caucuses.

Rather than the narrow margins of the previous two Iowa contests, Harkin's win was a landslide, giving him a strong boost heading into the next major contest in New Hampshire.

"You're going to decide whether my campaign goes on, whether Mr. Bush gets a vote for me," Harkin told NBC's "Meet the Press."

"Quiet loner" kidnaps then shoots three teenagers

By Michelle Williams

A 31-year-old former chocolate factory worker, who pleaded guilty to 17 slayings in Wisconsin, has been found guilty of murder in the state.

The defendant, Jeffrey Dahmer, was convicted of first-degree intentional homicide in the slaying of three teenagers in New York City.

Dahmer, a loner who had never been to a school or a church, had confided in his doctor that he had masturbated to necrophilia, a sexual attraction to corpses.

Dahmer's defense attorney, Dr. Frederick Fosdal, said he had persuaded Dahmer to break the law, "not that he was going to do it, but that he was going to break it.

Fosdal said Dahmer's testimony at the trial has demonstrated that Dahmer knew the slayings were wrong but said he convinced himself that he was going to let them go.

"We're just trying to get the case over with," Fosdal said.

"I looked out the window and saw him standing out there with blood," she said.

"I can't believe he did it," she said.

"He assured us that he was going to let us go," Ms. Stewart said.

"He kept us there all night and then he turned the other boys over to his grandmother," she said.

"He was a loner who often worked around the house," Kan said.

MEXICO CITY (AP) — American soldiers handed out soup and sandwiches to hundreds of Russian troops stuck on Monday at an air base in U.S. planes began an airlift to the stricken people of the former Soviet Union.

The 3,100 miners, called "Operation Provide Hope," will deliver tons of canned salads, dehydrated pork chops, apple pie filling and other items — most of it from the Persian Gulf War. "The Cold War is over, and now it is time for us to join in building a new peace," Secretary of State James A. Baker III said at the American planes took off from Bari, Italy. "The goal of the airlift is "not only to relieve the suffering, but to send a message of hope and support in hard times," Baker said.

Over the next two weeks, a total of 54 American flights will deliver $34 million worth of medical supplies and $6.5 million worth of food to help the former superpower get through the winter.

"This is very insignificant in terms of the total need. It's only a symbolic gesture," said Tom Brown, a member of an advance team sent to the U.S. Embassy.

The latest in a spell of money-for-foothumanitarian missions by the United States has pledged $5 billion in aid to the former Soviet states, mainly in the form of credit for purchases of American goods.

MOSCOW (AP) — A group of men just freed from the notorious Penal Colony No. 1 prison in Russia say Tuesday they believe President Boris Yeltsin was wrong when he described them as Russia's last political prisoners.

The former inmates, let go Friday, said they had been released into a new world, one that finally came up with a new definition of prisoners of conscience.

"In 1986, Mr. Gorbachev said there were no more political prisoners. Two years later Yeltsin said the same thing. It's still not true," said Boris Yudina, an ex-KGB agent in San Francisco who was arrested in Moscow for conspiring with the FBI.

Human rights activists say there are more than 1,000 people still imprisoned in Russia for refusing to serve in the military.

Ten men — all convicted of treason — were freed under a decree by Yeltsin, who announced at the United Nations that he had made a decision to free the prisoners of conscience. Even of the 100 reported released this week, 62 are still in prison.

"We don't know our country; we just know to change it," said Vladiy Fedotkin, who served 5 1/2 years of a 13-year prison term on an espionage conviction. "We won't accept any more nonsense. We want an account of giving information to the United States.

"We did our best before penitentiary even began. Now, all of our convictions are justified," Potashov said, adding that he was gratified by the downfall of communism.

"The changes were not brought by Yeltsin," he said. "I saw that all of my dreams came true. Russia has changed much."

Yudina added: "The best is, an internal process was developing in all of us, as we are all different."

They refused to serve in the military, and the country, disagreed about the extent of changes and said former Communist leaders such as Yeltsin are not enough to heal Russia.

"These changes eased my life spiritually," said Yuzhin. "We counted too much on the West," he said in an interview with The Associated Press.

Walesa has recently criticized Yeltsin for a lack of action. Last week, in a speech to the Council of Europe, he accused the West of "making good business" out of Poland's revolution, while giving little back in terms of "real help.

On Monday he said those comments were not meant only to "warn" Yeltsin, but that Western countries do not expect the profits from their investments in the former Soviet republics. That, he said, could bring a strain from democracy or even violence.

According to Walesa, Western Europe is guilty of rewarding Poland with goods, while taking little to help modernize factories and reduce unemployment. He said Poland might be a bad investment in the short term, but good for the long run. Walesa said the future of the Western nations is in going to a future led by the Soviet nations, and not just Yeltsin, at least not yet.

"What matters is giving a fishing rod for those who don't," he said. "So the strikes now are not against reforms, they are for reforms."
Institutionalization, dehumanization subject of lecture

By Deanna Partridge
Staff Writer

Institutionalization has been used in institutional violence with rationality and efficiency.

This was the message of yesterday’s Moving Beyond Violence and Conflict Luncheon Series lecture. Jim Gallagher and Valerie Carter of the Sociology department and Bill Whitaker of the Social Work department spoke to a group gathered in the Bangor Lounges of the Memorial Union.

The panel focused on the structures of capitalism, institutionalized racism and how each affects individuals.

Gallagher spoke about the rationalizations capitalist America uses to justify big business practices. He used three examples to illustrate his point.

First, Gallagher cited the Ford Pinto case. Ford produced the Pinto, which had a tendency to explode because of the positioning of the gas tank.

An office memo acknowledging this fact circulated and studies were performed to determine whether or not to recall the vehicle. Gallagher noted that the company compared the costs of recalling and improving the car to the fees it could expect to pay in personal injury claims. Based on the results, it was cheaper for Ford to not do anything.

Gallagher cited Ford’s complacency as an example of how “rational and calculated decision to do nothing.”

“With the morality of capitalism, it isn’t immoral what they did,” Gallagher said. “Economically it made perfect sense.”

To determine whether or not to recall the vehicle, Gallagher said the company compared the costs of recalling and improving the car to the fees it could expect to pay in personal injury claims. Based on the results, it was cheaper for Ford to not do anything.

Gallagher also cited the pull-out of big businesses from dependent areas, such as General Motors leaving Cleveland.

“The Holocaust also illustrated Gallagher’s point on how individuals are seen as less than human in order for such acts to be committed against them.”

Carter cited as an example of this form of structural violence red-lining, the process of defining areas based on high credit risk areas, andSometimes these practices in hiring and firing discriminate, racism, gender, race or physical appearance.

“Their are many unnecessary consequences regardless of whether or not there is intent,” Carter said.

She described the processes of institutional racism and discrimination in general as methods because the problems are “not always easy to detect.”

The problem of hunger in America is a vast one, according to the statistics provided by Whitaker.

In 1984, the Physicians Task Force on Hunger determined there were 20 million children facing hunger issues. Whitaker said 40 million people in danger each year. “Statistics are human faces with the tears wiped off,” Whitaker said. “It’s about time someone put the tears back.”

The stories of land shortages, household food poverty and individual food deprivation cause worse problems in society because of the effects on people.

“Just when you thought that a single Cheerio was the meaning of life, you find two stuck together.”

Whitaker reported Governor McKenna is proposing a $4 million cut to social services designed to assist the poor. If approved, those cuts would be compounded by an additional $11 million cut in matching funds.

These problems are the outcome of public policy, which in Whitaker’s opinion are the result of individual choices. He said he sees a need for self-organization to combat these problems. Questions were raised by the audience regarding how changes in the treatment of individuals and institutions could be achieved.

A revision of political attitudes may be considered as the primary method of change. As Carter summarized the current economic situation, “There’s too much catching up, see the search for scapegoats.”

Questions raised about Long Island secession

PORTLAND, Maine (AP) — As Long Island decides whether to press ahead with efforts to secede from Maine’s largest city, questions are being raised about residency status and voter eligibility.

State Rep. Arne Haak, who represents the Casco Bay Islands, has introduced a bill that would allow Long Island residents to vote in November on a proposal to split from Portland and form a new town.

Long Island has 183 registered voters, according to the Portland Board of Voter Registration. But Sylva Field, a town-mound resident, believes that in more than 100 residents qualify as eligible to vote on whether or not the island should secede from Portland.

"In this process, this information, I want to make sure that people voting is done for the people who have to live with the consequences," said Ladd.

Residents of the six major inhabited Casco Bay islands that are part of Portland have talked about seceding from the city because of a property evaluation that does not reflect and even increased real estate taxes.

The secession movement has advanced the farthest on Long Island, but Ladd contends that some islanders pushing for secession don’t qualify to vote on the proposal because they don’t live on the island year-round.

Ladd takes particular exception to Mark Greene, a town-mound resident who spends part of his time in Massachusetts but is a leader of the group pushing for the secession vote.

"I object to Mark Greene, who’s a Massachusetts resident, pushing for a healthy economy in Maine and the rest of Maine, and other senators from the region," Ladd said.

Greene, who spends weekends and summers on Long Island and lives in Sterling, Mass., during the week, Greene’s wife is registered to vote in Massachusetts and her children attend school there.

But Greene counts himself as a Long Island resident, he said, because he spends more than half of his time there.

His teaching schedule, he said, is 180 days per year, leaving him 185 days annually to spend on Long Island.

"If you read the law — spouses can split their residences and vote in different places," Greene said. "I am red in between being a Long Island resident and seasonal. I’m neither." Additionally, Greene said he pays Maine income taxes on rental income from properties on Long Island.

Barbara Whitmore, chairman of the Portland Board of Voter Registration, said Greene appears to meet the residency requirements and has been registered on Long Island for 20 years without being challenged.

But if Greene’s residency is questioned, Whitmore said, the board would need to verify his Long Island address. If the postcard is returned as undeliverable, Whitmore said, that would prove he doesn’t live on the island and disqualify him from voting.

Environmentalist says defense cuts should pay for clean water

By Janis L. Magin

PORTLAND, Maine (AP) — Roading that towns and cities need the nation’s original highways, an environmentalist says funding to preserve clean waterways should be on par with the amount allocated for roads.

"There is no right of anyone to pollute the environment," said Robert Adler, a senior attorney with the Natural Resources Defense Council, based in Washington.

Money saved from cuts in defense spending should be earmarked for protection of water quality of lakes and rivers, Adler said Monday.

"As we take dollars away from defense, we can put them into water quality," Adler, speaking to about 200 utility and municipal officials at the Maine Water Utilities Association’s annual meeting, outlined public waters, "as proposed changes to the federal Clean Water Act that have been proposed by the National Clean Water Network. The act is renewed by Congress every five years, and these changes are being reviewed by the Senate.

They include setting goals for pollution prevention, anti-drug use of toxic waste, preservation of wetlands and increased enforcement of clean-water laws.

Beyond technological and financial limitations, Adler said, there were no longer any excuses for water pollution.

Adler said Maine has a "golden opportunity" to create jobs by strengthening efforts to preserve the quality of its rivers and lakes, as well as to its recreation and fishing industries.

A clean environment, he said, "can support a healthy economy in Maine" and the rest of the country.

"People have to realize that a clean environment does equal jobs," he said.

Adler said Maine’s rivers and lakes are threatened by continued pollution from industries that could eventually harm tourism and the state’s supply of drinking water.

Confessions of a love broker

Melissa Adams

As a love broker, it's my job to match people up. I've helped countless couples find happiness and success. With every relationship, I strive to bring out the best in each other.

Recently, a client approached me with a unique challenge. They wanted me to find the perfect match for their friend, a person who was struggling to find love due to previous heartbreaks. After a thorough evaluation, I decided to introduce them to someone who would complete them. The outcome was unexpected, but ultimately successful.

The moral of the story? Never doubt the power of love and the importance of bringing people together. It's my job to make sure everyone finds their happily ever after.

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — Cambodian guerrilla factions appear to have released all prisoners captured during 13 years of war with the Vietnamese-controlled government, a Red Cross official said Monday.

The Khmer Rouge and Maoist China have agreed to attend a Feb. 25 meeting to determine the fate of the estimated 2,000 prisoners who have been held since the Khmer Rouge's 1975 to 1979 domination of Cambodia.

Arrangements for the meeting, to be held in Thailand, will be made by the International Committee of the Red Cross, which is acting as an intermediary between the two factions.

The Khmer Rouge has been preparing to release all political prisoners captured during a 1975-79 civil war with the Vietnamese-installed government. It has made its first Red Cross statement declaring an end to the war.

Chinese officials have also agreed to attend the meeting. The Khmer Rouge said the meeting will be held on the same day as the Vietnamese peace agreement with China.

The peace accord provides for the immediate release of all political and war prisoners, said a Red Cross official who was not identified.

The agreement will be advisory and is to be followed by the,next year's release of all political prisoners, said the official.

He said the government has hastened to complete its preparations for the release.

The government has already freed 453 detainees, said the official.

The government made its first Red Cross statement on Jan. 15, only after foreign diplomatic pressure had brought the announcement.

The government has been under increasing pressure to release the prisoners, said the official.

There have been a few other releases since the government's first announcement, said the official.

For Wednesday February 12

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY:

Others may call you a dreamer, but you're willing to do what it takes to make your dreams come true. Playing by the rules is another story, however. You're not comfortable with artificial limitations of any sort. Fortunately, you have a strong moral compass to direct your energy. Teamwork with a select few can go a long way in reaching your ultimate goal.

ARIES (March 21 — April 19): Communication with your patients, so it's wise to avoid fees and the negativity. If you don't, the resulting confrontation could cause you a friend.

TAURUS (April 20 — May 20): Stress causes short tempers. Don't allow a clash of egos to exacerbate the situation. The colour you are, the more control you'll have.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Rash behaviour brings undesirable consequences. Avoid conflicts with family members or co-workers. Minor differences could cause major battles.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Inflated and pessimistic friends lack true understanding, as true down syndrome is a mental disorder! A cloud could be blown out of proportion.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): A fresh attitude has you doing all the good things you want to do but things are not necessarily as they seem. Beware of filling for a cultured image. Examine the basis of the relationship.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Feeling pressure to make a commitment you’re not ready for causes you to lash out at people. Petty annoyances tend to accumulate under these circumstances.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): What you consider a casual encounter may not be so to others; you must be careful not to tangle with anyone’s heart. Appreciate the legwork people.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 — Nov. 21): The silence of a friend is not meaningful nor does it necessarily signal agreement. Select the decisive to share height when it comes down to learning family members.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Something new is averted by a timely event, accelerating emotional growth. Emotional acts will come back to haunt you later.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Mysterious may take control of anything that comes your way. There are no reasons to support an argument that exists more. Avoiding conflict is advised.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Avoiding an argument to take sides in a matter that does not really concern you. Don’t be too contradictory about the weighted narrow or pay the consequences.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — March 20): The secret agenda of an innocent person comes to disrupt the continuity within the office. You have all the ammunition needed to emerge victorious.

ResLife survey points out student concerns

By Andrew Gilmore
Staff Writer

Changes in the Residential Life Quality of Life Surveys have been implemented into the current survey. The survey has been designed for the current academic year according to Karl Kasper, a director of ResLife at UMaine. Students are asked questions about what they are satisfied or dissatisfied with on campus. The survey asks them about the way things are now, what they would prefer, and how they think the university should be spending the money. The surveys are sent to students in residence halls, as in previous years. Instead, 500 random students are selected for the survey, according to the survey." The changes enable the results to be known within one week after they are completed.

According to the survey, 44 percent of respondents agreed sexual harassment exists in their hall. The changes in the survey were to allow the results to be known in a timely manner. The changes enabled ResLife to serve students more effectively.

The Dining Services take the results very seriously," Kasper said. "We have made changes in the distribution of life on campus. The changes enable the results to be known within one week after they are completed.

Tyson attends probation hearing after conviction
By Thomas P. Wyman
Associated Press Writer

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Boxer Mike Tyson returned to the courthouse today a convicted rapist, giving a small probation hearing. Tyson was not being heard guilty of attacking a woman in a hotel room 10 months ago, but a conviction on a lesser charge of rape.

Tyson had a serious look on his face and said nothing, other than "I'm very happy with the verdict," she added.

"I'm very happy with the jury, the police and the prosecutor," she said.

Tyson was convicted last month in the July 1991 attack on a 32-year-old male actress. The conviction late Monday in the July 1991 attack on a 32-year-old male actress. The conviction late Monday in the July 1991 attack on a 32-year-old male actress.

NEW YORK (AP) — Shortstop Jay Bell #5 of the Seattle Mariners, and the New York Yankees, appeared in court Monday for baseball arbitration hearings.

The case is the final one of this year for Bell, who made $980,000 in 1991, in seeking $1.45 million while the Mariners are offering $1 million. The case was heard by arbitrator Grover Chinn.

Bell reached No. 1 in the ATP ranking. He's the vaulted to the top of the tennis world with his amazing All-Star game performance bonuses. He had asked for $1.05 million and the Brewers had offered $525,000. Spiers has the chance to make $75,000 in following the season. In addition to his salary, Espinoza had asked for $1.3 million and New York had offered $800,000. Perez, traded from the Chicago White Sox to New York last month, settled at $1,165,000, a raise of $707,000.
