Planning Board News

Minutes of the Regular Meeting of the Vienna Planning Board held November 22, 2017

The meeting convened at the Town House at 7:00 PM; members present were Wayne Whittier, Ed Lawless, Alan Williams, Creston Gaither, and Tim Bickford. Minutes of the Oct. 25 meeting were read and accepted.

- Creston noted that the property shown on Tax Map 10 as Lot 42 and described as the "Moore" property in September's minutes is in fact now owned by Beverly and Bryan Harpine. Creston amended the permit the Board approved for this lot in September at the time of its finalization.
- Possible ordinance changes were discussed.
- Wayne noted that M.R.S.A. Title 38 § 439-A as shown on page 169 of the Land Use Pamphlets recites the prospective change to the Shoreland Zoning Ordinance (SZO) regarding the expansion of non-conforming uses. As it uses footprint and not volume as its criterion it appears to make the rules a bit more lenient. It was agreed to submit this change to the selectmen for adoption at the March Town Meeting.
- Existing setback requirements in the Subdivision and Shoreland Zoning Ordinances were reviewed and discussed. Alan suggested that the SZO language be made a part of the Subdivision Ordinance as surveyed right-of-way lines are normally required for subdivision approval.
- The Board agreed that a public hearing should be held regarding these changes. The Board also agreed to cancel its December meeting and to hold the public hearing at its January meeting which was re-scheduled for January 17. Creston will advertise these dates.
- 3 recent permits were briefly reviewed.

The Meeting adjourned at 7:45 PM.

Ordinance Review Committee News

Vienna Ordinance Review Committee

October 19, 2017

The Ordinance Review Committee (VORC) met Thursday, October 19th at the Town House at 6:30 pm.

Present were Jim Anderberg and Susan Burns, VORC; Dodi Thompson, 1st Selectman; Wayne Whittier, Planning Board Chairman

- The first discussion item was the VOR Committee makeup, size and tasks. Those present agreed to the expansion of the Committee from three members (one seat is currently vacant) to five and the inclusion of a Planning Board member as one of the three new appointees. The Selectmen will appoint the new members. Meetings of the Committee will resume after the appointments have been made and a need for ordinance work has been determined.
- The second discussion item pertained to Planning Board ordinance work. Wayne indicated the Planning Board is considering proposed amendments to Vienna's Shoreland Zoning Ordinance in line with the Maine State Shoreline Zoning Guidelines.
- The last item involved a general discussion of the referendum and laws pertaining to marijuana. The State has yet to address the law, which may occur either later this year or in 2018.

The meeting adjourned at 7:10 pm.

From the Health Officer

HEY, ABOUT THE INFLUENZA EPIDEMIC, MANY OF YOU NEED TO LISTEN UP TO HELP YOURSELVES, YOUR FAMILY AND THE REST OF THE COMMUNITY MORE RIGHT NOW!
HERE'S HOW!

Dan Onion, MD, MPH
Mt. Vernon/Vienna Health Officer
293-2076; dkonion@gmail.com
February, 2018

People, people, people, many of you I meet are not listening, and are giving up about surviving the influenza epidemic we are in the midst of right now. That's crazy; please don't! We've got several kinds of arrows in our quiver to help us and ours survive if we are smart enough to use multiple strategies at once, as we do with other complicated challenges. Listen up! Here's how.

Please start by going back and reading my piece last November, 2017 in the town newsletter, Medical Probabilities Exemplified in Influenza and Car Crashes. Go back and read those details; they are important. I explain the presence and impact of probabilities of influenza vaccine on the spread and effect of a "flu"¹ epidemic in our community. It never is all or nothing! I hate the way the media emphasize one artificial number, "the effectiveness" of the vaccine. I am not even sure how they compound that one number, but it ain't the whole story and it sure seems to encourage people to give up. The number they are disseminating now is "30% effective". That should mean that of 100 people, who are exposed to the flu by breathing the viruses into their nose and lungs, 70 will get the flu while 30 won't. But those aren't bad odds to start with. We take what we can get and then go from there. So if you got a flu shot, you are right now that far ahead of your neighbor who didn't. What they don't tell you clearly enough, is that of the 70 who get the flu, those who have had a flu shot, nearly all have a better time of it with less severe illness, fewer complications, and not being so sick they are hospitalized or die. Yea, influenza can be a fatal disease and is proving itself to be right now in Maine! Listen up!

Yesterday I talked about influenza with 3 people. One, a 70s year old friend and carpenter, told me he never got flu shots, didn't believe in them, and wasn't getting one despite having had severe pneumonia last year in that milder flu epidemic even though he still had left over lung damage and shortness of breath from it. He, of all people, needs a leg up on this year; I begged him to get the shot. Then there was a young woman grocery clerk with a clearly sputum-producing cough, repeatedly turning to cough away from her customers. Now it could be she just had bronchitis from being a smoker, but that would be unusual at her age and in the midst of a flu epidemic. I bet she had an early influenza infection and will get sicker. Coughing in the other direction simply spread the virus more widely; she should be taught how to effectively cover her mouth with her elbow and/or wear an effective mask, or go home until better. Her employer has a responsibility to have effective education to make this happen. Unfortunately the Maine Center for Disease Control (CDC), which tries to do that education, has been budget cut to the bone; and the US congress let the national CDC shut down over the budget fight. So we may be on our own, guys. The 3rd example was a mother of a 1-year old who didn't "believe in" flu shots for her kid. My God folks, this isn't a belief issue; it's the science that got us to the moon, dropped mortality rates in this country so most of us get to see age 75 now, and redesigned cars and roads so motor vehicle deaths have plummeted over the last 50 years!

First you've got to understand and recognize two things:

- What influenza is and what it is not. It is not simply a cold with sore throat and temperature under 100 degrees and the person still able to function. Nor is it predominantly nausea, vomiting and diarrhea from gut germs, and which we also call "flu". Rather, it is a specific viral infection of the lung itself, caused by several related influenza viruses which characteristically change their protein coats as they rip through the population each year. That way people, who have previously been infected, have less resistance because the blue coat antibody (antibodies are the swords our blood cell soldiers use) their body produced by infection with the blue coats last year don't work as well against the red and purple coats the little devils have switched to. Still, they do work some in slowing down the severity of the resulting illness.

¹ I use the word flu and influenza interchangeably in this article but "flu" also has at least several other meanings to us including a bad cold and gastrointestinal upset, mentioned but not what I am talking about here.

- The vaccine actually immunizes against 4 different types of influenza viruses this year (that's what "quadrivalent" means) because these sneaky devils run in packs. Each of those shot elements have varying efficacy. But again, you take what help you can get, and shouldn't let the perfect be the enemy of the good.
- We have designer vaccines with higher doses for older people, many times also now on immune-suppressant drugs for our chronic diseases like me, and who are harder to make immune, so we need double doses of the vaccine at a time. Childhood vaccines under age 2 are similarly specific to that age group. Get a flu shot now, if you haven't already this fall or this month. This epidemic is going to go on until spring, April or even May, guaranteed. They all peak in late March with the maximal snow depth no matter the year.

Second, recognize and know about the 3 ways people get sick with the flu and how to take care of them.

- Super sick fast patients: these are usually young people over 4 but under 40, mostly teenagers and young adults with young families of their own, kids often bring it home from school, who haven't seen as many winters as us oldies and thus have a narrower spectrum of past body experience with the shifting devils. They get sick one night with chills, sometimes but not always have a fever over 101, become prostrate within hours, always have cough, which may not produce sputum; their lungs "white out" (fill with fluid) by xray, they often get confused, turn blue and will/can die within hours, often overnight. Get them to an emergency room ASAP, do not delay!! Rare but extremely dangerous, the ones you hear about on TV right here in Maine now.
- Then there is another other group with delayed badness, especially in the young and old patients, who get the flu with fever over 101, productive cough, feel rotten all over, may have some vomiting, rarely diarrhea, who are having bad influenza that then allows a secondary bacterial pneumonia to grow in the lung mess the flu made. They start to get better after 3-5 days then relapse back with high fever, get sicker again, with more cough, more sputum, if they are strong enough to produce it, and can die in a few more days if not diagnosed and treated with bacterial antibiotics. They go to the ER as soon as that bounce back to bad happens
- Finally for the rest of the population, with sore throat, fever chills the next day, feel lousy, try to work still, which exposes more friends and neighbors, then gradually improve over a week and get back in the saddle.

Thirdly there are effective medical interventions that work and help those in the 2nd and 3rd bullet groups. You can prepare for using them by asking your doctor or nurse to consider giving you a written prescription for oseltamivir (Tamiflu) 75 mg to have on hand to fill if you get sick, taken twice a day for 14 days and started within the first 48 hours of classic symptoms of the real flu; many clinicians will want to test a throat swab before prescribing Tamiflu but when the epidemic gets bad, most will figure hoof beats mean horses and do it even over the phone if your case sounds good enough. Also, by taking Tamiflu when you have been exposed to someone living in your house with influenza, one pill a day for 7 days can decrease the likelihood you get it and certainly reduce the rate of complications.

And finally, think of your family, friends and neighbors. Don't work or visit with them if you can help it, when you are sick. Not 100% effective because you are spreading the virus a couple days before you get really sick, but still can help others.

That's all (yea right!)! Get a flu shot now if you have not. Avoid people sick with the real flu if you can. Know the 3 different patterns of illness when you or family get it. And be prepared to soften the blow with Tamiflu.

Dr. Shaw Memorial Library News

"One of the good things about America, right up there with baseball and Jimi Hendrix, is the library...It's the home for words...There's restfulness, everything peaceful...It's so gentle that I could sit and read the newspaper...There's Tom, a regular citizen, doing his civic duty, keeping current, a believer in the ways of the known world."

~Baron Wormser, Tom O'Vietnam

It's February, that month when Cabin Fever can take hold and not let go. Good thing we have a plan to break that up a bit! On Saturday, February 10th, from 10:30 till 2:00, bring your kids into the library and browse our small collection of used children's books for sale, and stay to make some Valentine cards! Kids can make cards for friends and family, or they can make some which we will donate to recipients of Meals on Wheels. It will be a chance to spend some time together, and to create some cheer for others. Please join us.

On snowy or icy days, please remember to call us during our usual hours to see if we are open. We are most often closed if the local schools are closed, or if we know parking will be a challenge. Give us a call at 293-2565 during these hours: Monday 3-6, Wednesday 9-12 & 3-7, and Saturday 10-3. If we don't answer, don't come!

There are so many great websites out there, it's hard to keep track. We mentioned How Stuff Works a few years ago, and it is still worth a look. A great one for people who are curious about how things are put together, or function, with plenty of examples and illustrations, in a wide range of subject areas. You can access it here: <https://www.howstuffworks.com/>

Here's a good one for families who love cooking – Spatulatta: Cooking for Kids, at <http://spatulatta.com/>. It was created by a couple of women and their daughters, and it is all about learning to cook. You can find recipes for meals, appetizers, salads, and desserts, and it is international in scope. It might give you some fun winter kitchen activities to try together.

Dan's Wild Wild Science Journal is all about "advancing earth and space science". It is at: <https://blogs.agu.org/wildwildscience/> You will find lots of weather-related stuff, and you can search his blog posts by topic.

One of our new children's picture books is Bees: a Honeyed History, by W. Grajkowski. It is a large format book with such beautiful and intricate illustrations, accompanied by all sorts of information, all creatively connected. I love the large format books, there is so much to absorb from each and every page, and there is something about handling such a beautiful book. In that format we also have Animalium by Jenny Broom, and Steve Jenkins' (a great writer of juvenile nonfiction) The Animal Book.

I just finished a new addition to our fiction collection, by Baron Wormser, former Maine Poet Laureate. It is his first work of fiction, entitled Tom O'Vietnam. The novella is a consideration of a Viet Nam vet who has been back home for a few years, and because of his experiences during the war, he has not yet settled into a place or a way of life that feels comfortable. He is haunted by his experiences, and relies heavily on the one item he carries with him always – his worn copy of King Lear – to help him find his way. Beautiful, stark prose, stream of consciousness. I'll get it back to the library as soon as possible! What are you reading as the days begin to lengthen and the cold strengthens once again?

Mt. Vernon-Vienna Giving Tree Recap

Mt. Vernon-Vienna Giving Tree

This year's Giving Tree was extremely challenging. The tree was totally covered with 261 wishes; so many that it was impossible to see the branches! These 261 tags were wishes for 30 families, 67 children and 30 "Cheerful Gifts". With this large amount of anticipated packages, it became apparent that Santa's Elves had outgrown the space at the Rescue station and were in need of a larger workshop!

When approached with the possibility of using the Vienna Fire Station, Chief Brian Church didn't hesitate to agree to our setting up shop there. Not only did we have a large, well lit, comfortable space with all kinds of room to work and spread out but Brian and Laura (Rescue's beloved Chaplain) helped to set up tables and made sure we had everything we needed (including coffee!).

Among the things that elves need are a secure space and access to that space whenever they needed to bring gifts as they came in. Chief Church made that happen. I think the firefighters were a little surprised to see their community room transformed into Santa's workshop, but they were more than gracious and made themselves available for anything we needed.

The Chief definitely was captured by the Christmas Spirit and was hoping he could be Santa! Since the Giving Tree grants every wish requested, a suit was found for him! He did a fine job assisting Santa Rex as they greeted families that day...no doubt to the delight of his granddaughter Margaret.

Santa Chief and Mrs. Claus (aka Chaplain 1) drove away in their sleigh (Engine 82) bringing cheerful gifts and visits all throughout Vienna. A truly magical day!
