Dear Matthew,

Here are this week's Six Picks to keep you connected to the world of performing arts. Find more links like these on our website. Enjoy!

Table of Silence Project 9/11

Watch now

A must-see: Buglisi Dance Theatre and Lincoln Center for the Performing Arts, in partnership with Dance/NYC, present a reimagining of the Table of Silence Project 9/11, an annual free public performance ritual for peace.

Miscast Sept. 13 at 8 p.m.

MCC Theater's annual gala where Broadway's hottest stars perform songs from roles in which they would never be cast. The full event will be live-streamed for free.

National Folk Festival Sept. 12-13 at various times

The National Folk Festival travels to host cities around the country. They were in Bangor from 2002-2004, creating the footprint for the American Folk Festival. For those of us who will miss attending, this one's for you! This virtual celebration will combine highlights from previous fests and new performances recorded exclusively for this event.

5 Minutes That Will Make You Love Classical Music
Listen anytime

Last week, we presented you with some incredibly moving violin music recommended by some of the New York Times' favorite artists. This week, we continue with that concept, as NYT writers, editors and friends choose music that would convince friends to fall in love with classical music.

Minute for Music
Every M & W at 10 a.m. or anytime

A couple of times every week, the Oregon Symphony shares one-minute videos created by their musicians. You may hear them play a favorite piece (often, in unusual settings), they may share favorite music, or it may simply be a "day in the life of..." Tune in live or watch all 49 videos recorded so far.

Porch Songs
Listen anytime

Porch Songs is an ongoing series of self-recorded musical performances by People's Light artists on their porches, decks, patios, balconies, backyards—or simply by an open window or door. Enjoy these small offerings of companionship, hope, healing, and song from wherever you are in the world

Bonus pick!

Virtual Meeting Backgrounds from The Met
Perfect for your next Zoom meeting!

If you're working from home and find yourself missing the Met, use images from their venue to bring some of the magic of grand opera to your next virtual meeting. Complete with instructions. (This one's for you, Kayla and Zack!)

Please consider...
