Waldo reads together

January 28, 2021 | Teaching in brief

The University of Maine Hutchinson Center is partnering with Aging Well Waldo County, and other area nonprofits and schools, to promote and facilitate Waldo Reads Together, Waldo County's first community read project. The project launches this week, with novelist Colson Whitehead's Pulitzer Prize-winning book, "The Nickel Boys," selected for the 2021 read. The goal of selecting this particular book is to address social isolation due to COVID and contribute to community conversations about social justice, racial justice, equity and diversity. More information on the project can be found here.
