

6-2-2015

2 Poems ("Sardines" and "Lobster Festival")

Mark Raymond
Owls Head, Maine

Follow this and additional works at: https://digitalcommons.library.umaine.edu/the_catch

Recommended Citation

Raymond, Mark (2015) "2 Poems ("Sardines" and "Lobster Festival")," The Catch: Vol. 3 , Article 5.
Available at: https://digitalcommons.library.umaine.edu/the_catch/vol3/iss1/5

This Poetry is brought to you for free and open access by DigitalCommons@UMaine. It has been accepted for inclusion in The Catch by an authorized administrator of DigitalCommons@UMaine. For more information, please contact um.library.technical.services@maine.edu.

Sardines

Patsy Brand and Rondo, Drummer Boy and Sunset, Leader, Melon, Martel, Pemco, Stag, Peacock's Medallion, Peacock's Best, Lookout, Blue Hen, Red Horse, Possum, Victor Renée, Port Clyde.

Granite stones, round as moons, fleckered with fish scales like stars;

boots that dance on mussel shells and dry wrack black as gypsy hair—

I hear the herring singing, with their little heads all off.

The women at the cannery have fingers quick as cats.

The working tides eat at you until there's not a bite left.

Lobster Festival

They say at the first in '47
Robert P. Tristan Coffin, Pulitzer poet from Brunswick, ate ten large lobsters at a sitting,

all for a dollar. In the 70's you'd come upon flush guys handing over wadded dollars to visit the carnival strippers.

Who hasn't missed the sideshow,
the sea-hags and sardine-packing queen?
When sailors did escort the Sea Goddess and her court down to the dawn-reddened sea?