During the past year the Town. rejected a proposal to build a new school under the provisions of the Maine State Authority Act. As a result, we have continued to do the best that is possible with the facilities available. We have endeavored to provide all necessary books and supplies, and a good corps of teachers has worked hard to give to the children' the best possible educational opportunities that can be made available in an inadequate physical plant. The Health Council continues to make an important contribution to the welfare of the school children by promoting an excellent health program. The transportation facilities for the children have been operated in a dependable and satisfactory manner.

I again recommend that some action be taken to improve the physical condition of the schools. A new consolidated school, would be the proper way to provide modern educational facilities. The Maine State Building Authority program continues to be available. However, an alternate plan of improvement, which would cost much less than a new building, might resolve itself as follows:

(1) Convert the Town Hall into a three room school by adding one more room. Necessary repairs should be made to put the building in first class order. Water should be provided together with flush toilets and hot air heat. The building could continue to serve as a Town Hall, in fact it would serve that purpose better than it does now, because modern facilities would be provided. The Durell School might be attached to the Town Hall to provide the third room. The Irving, North Chapel, and Durell Schools would be closed.

(2) Add one room to the Burnham School, thereby making a three room unit out of that building. Necessary repairs should be made to place the building in good physical condition. Water should be provided, together with flush toilets and hot air heat. The Iron Bridge School would be closed.

The plan I have suggested would

(1) make a partial consolidation, with one 3-room building in each end of the town.

(2) provide opportunity to have a primary room, a middle grade room and an upper grade room in each unit.

(3) provide water, flush toilets and proper heat for the children.

I have investigated the possibility of transporting some grades to surrounding towns, but it appears that these towns, because of their own crowded conditions, are not interested in any large number of tuition pupils.

I hope some plan for the improvement of the educational opportunities of the town will prevail.

I wish to thank the School Committee, parents and teachers for their continued cooperation.

Respectfully yours,

PAUL LARRABEE

REPORT OF PUBLIC HEALTH NURSE

The nurse in a generalized public health nursing program does not limit her attention to one special health condition in the family, but looks at family health needs as a whole.

ANNUAL REPORT

The contribution of service clubs has been very helpful in the community health program. The assistance given to crippled children and other children with physical defects has been a credible service in the Child Health program.

The public health nursing program has undergone many changes both in the functions of professional and lay workers since the early period. Lay participation is vital to the success of a public health nursing service.

The extent to which the public health services are known, to the public will greatly influence the effectiveness of the program. Lay persons who are interested in community welfare help interpret health services. The well informed lay person is usually a desirable agent in this capacity because he or she has the advantage of being a representative of the public.

The efforts developed to meet the health needs of the community, must be kept in balance by the wishes of the public.

One of the objectives of the public health nurse in her relationship with the family is to encourage its members to respond reasonably to their problems.

Successful family service in public health nursing are based on an intelligent understanding of the family, and the attitudes and interests that control the family's actions and patterns of living. If the health instruction of the nurse is to take root and become effective, it must be preceded by consideration for family relationships and environmental factors. The approach of the nurse requires both restraint and judgment.

The home is the individual's castle in which he feels free to express himself. Many times he engages in activities that are detrimental to the welfare of himself and his family but the nurse cannot dictate to him what he should do or not do. These matters must be handled skilfully to bring successful results. Minor adjustments within the family may be all that is necessary to relieve emotional strain and restore harmony.

I have intentionally left out all statistics from this report but would like to invite anyone interested to see these reports.

The same program has been continued and I feel there is some improvement in the general health of school children.

I would like to thank all who have helped in the success of the program. With your continued support I hope the service will continue to expand in 1953 since much remains to be done.

Respectfully submitted,

FLORENCE G. POIRIER, R. N.

ANNUAL REPORT

MOUTH HEALTH PROJECT

During October 1952, 55 children took advantage of the fifth annual program of sodium fluoride applications for partial prevention of dental decay offered by the Health Council and carried out by a dental hygienist from the Division of Dental Health, State Department of Health and Welfare. These treatments, if given at the recommended ages of 3, 7, 10 and 13 years, can be expected to make the child's teeth nearly twice as resistant to decay. Although comparatively new, this method of preventing dental decay is fast becoming an accepted part of many community health services.

STATE DEPARTMENT OF HEALTH AND WELFARE

REPORT ON MOUTH HEALTH PROJECT

To the North Kennebunkport Health Council:

Your annual mouth health education project has been completed for this year. This program included all the schools and, following the previously set-up plan, consisted of sodium fluoride applications, mouth examinations and individualized instruction in care of the teeth. The usual fifteen days were contracted for but this time only fourteen days were used.

According to the plan, sodium fluoride applications were offered to the three, seven, ten and thirteen year olds. The response of the three year olds was not too good for only three out of a possible twelve took advantage of the service. This age, of course, is ideal for the applications because it not only provides a chance to talk with the parents, but it starts practical and early protection from dental decay. Of the school children offered applications there was 100 percent response from each school except five from the Burnham and one from the Iron Bridge. This made a total of 52 children who were given this protection for their teeth.

As part of the educational activities children from the first grade in each school had mouth examinations, made with mouth mirror and dental explorer. At the time of examination individual instruction was given each child emphasizing that part of his mouth which appeared to need more attention.

Reports were sent home to the parents of each child examined, informing them as to the condition of their child's mouth and recommending both dental and home care where needed. Suggestions helpful in preventing decay are incorporated in these reports, and in the instance of sodium fluoride applications ages for the next series were suggested.

ANNUAL REPORT

The number of children examined totaled 75 in all. Of these 75 we can say that 21 had truly clean mouths; 12 said they see their dentist regularly; 2 had had all decay corrected; and 6 had not ever experienced any decay at all. Combining the number with decay corrected and the number with no decay gives us a total of 8 we can say have completely healthy mouths. All children in the schools have toothbrushes thanks to the Health Council and their supply available to the children. It appears more effort is needed to interest the mothers of the preschoolers, for apparently it is not the problem of transportation that keeps them from following through with their appointments. We feel that perhaps personally calling upon these mothers to fully acquaint them with what the applications offer may help. This could be done sometime during the year by members of the Health Council. The preschool list of the three year olds may be obtained from the public health nurse at any time. The younger decay prevention begins the better the mouth health.

Classroom lessons were taught in each school room by the dental hygienist. It has become apparent during the course of these programs that if a teacher coordinates dental health with other lessons the children's teeth show it. It takes constant reminding to keep a child aware that care is necessary to the teeth for it is clear when the hygienist is working in the area the children care for their teeth more and become more conscious of them. Too, a child likes to have interest shown in him.

North Kennebunkport has a very good decay preventative program under way—paying dividends in more children having better mouth health. However, it is practical to think in terms of correction as well as prevention. There are a good many children in town who cannot afford dental care. We feel to have a well rounded and progressive program it becomes essential to have some arrangement for corrective work done on those children whose parents are unable to afford to care for them. This could be done by grades to avoid distress on the part of a parent or to avoid antagonism. Correction combined with the prevention and education makes a more ideal program.

We wish to thank everyone in North Kennebunkport who worked to make the program run so smoothly. Everyone was most cooperative.

Respectfully submitted,

MARY PRINCE, R. D. H.

Selectmen of North Kennebunkport

BUDGET COMMITTEE REPORT

To the Citizens of North Kennebunkport:

Your Budget Committee met with the Board of Selectmen, School Committee, Superintendent of Schools, Road Commissioners, and Health Council. We went over the appropriations very carefully and gave them thorough consideration.

This year's appropriations if followed by the Budget Committee recommendations, will be $32,196.00, keeping the tax rate in the vicinity of $76.00 on a thousand. It's the Budget Committee's desire that you give the articles due consideration and try to follow our plan as near as possible.

Thank you,

The Budget Committee.
