I am Mrs. Irving Fadden, Junior, Captain of the West Side. I know from my own personal experience the foundation helps victims of polio. Close relatives of mine, three children of one family, had polio and the foundation helped financially all three children. Track 56, Mrs. Gladys Gifford

Length of recording: 1:06

[transcript begins]

I am Mrs. Gladys Gifford, Captain of the West Side. No doubt the mothers of the nation are more concerned and more interested in this fight against polio than any other one group of people you could get together. We that have children are watching with anxious eyes the road to victory they are making over this dread disease. We all feel that this great crusade, the March of Dimes, will have to be pushed to the limit to raise the necessary funds to help all those stricken before the fight can be won and to help this great study in the laboratories of America. This terrible disease does not stop with our children, but takes men and women of mature years, so please have your porch light on tomorrow night. Please give liberally for your own sake and for all the children in the nation.
