E. W. NASH, Auditor

March 7, 1919
REPORT OF SUPERINTENDENT OF SCHOOLS

We are all aware that we have been and are still living in times of such stress the world has never known. We have all been obliged to adjust ourselves to circumstances as they have come upon us, and to meet bravely those changes over which we have had no control. We should also meet them uncomplainingly.

This is just as much a demonstration of our patriotism as it was of our boys to offer their lives to their country.

These forces have entered our town, our homes, our churches, and our schools. Perhaps they have effected our schools in degree next to our homes. Certainly our schools have suffered in nearly every way but lack of teachers. Our Superintending School Committee has seen to it that there should be no loss along that line.

It has been the epidemic force that we have felt most. Schools have opened and closed as the plague manifested itself, yet we shall be able to say at the end of the year in this town that we have maintained our usual school year of thirty-six weeks. This is because we are a small town, supporting only four schools.

The spring term of twelve weeks opened with the three teachers of last year, Miss Marsh at the General Grant, Miss Parsons at the grammar, and Miss Dunbar at the primary school. These teachers are too well known in this town to need special mention.
The General Grant school, which was years in being adjusted is now doing the same line of work and in the same way that is being done in the village schools. Truancy is almost a thing of the past. The school building has received quite extensive repairs, making the room very bright and attractive.

Before the fall schools began the Round Top school was opened by vote, and Miss Chandler resumed her duties again through the fall and winter terms. Everything proceeds in that school with a certain peculiar force evidenced by brisk recitations of well learned lessons. Miss Chandler is a progressive teacher.

The fall term of fourteen weeks and winter term of ten, were under the instruction of those teachers of the spring term.

Reading through all grades in every school has had special attention. "The Progressive Road to Reading" is taught by teachers who have made themselves proficient in the art of teaching it. Mrs. Gertrude Monkhouse is an expert in this.

Better work in language and grammar has been accomplished this year than any year since my supervision began. It is a pleasure to listen to the work being done in this branch by Miss Parsons' sixth grade scholars.

Eleven scholars from the grammar school entered Lincoln Academy in the fall.

I wish it were possible for parents to visit our schools during recitation periods. No idea of the value of the work done can be gained by just dropping in to listen to some entertainment.

New blackboards must be placed in the village school room. It is useless to ask for the repairs needed for so many years, and I understand by this time that our town had rather the situation should.
remain as it is, than have it remedied. I mean the outbuildings.

But when the eyesight of our children is menaced the only right thing to do is to consider it an absolute necessity, and furnish a remedy. This is a necessity and the remedy, blackboards, which must be furnished this year.

All schools are well provided with books. The village school, having the greater number of scholars needs the greater number of books and must have a book closet of adequate size to hold those not in use.
