SCHOOL REPORT.

CITIZENS OF ST. ALBANS:

I have the honor to submit herewith my second annual report, the same being for the year ending Feb. 20, 1895.

TEACHERS:

It is with pleasure I announce to the citizens that the past year has been one of prosperity in our schools. The teachers have been faithful and conscientious in the discharge of their duties and deserve all the praise that can be bestowed upon them. And ought we not to be proud when we think that all of the teachers who have been employed in the schools during the year have been our own town's girls with not a single exception? And everything being equal, is it not better to hire teachers from our own town than to go out and hire those who, perhaps, have no interest outside of the compensation? To be sure a Normal training is good, and a Normal course is advisable for those who possess the qualifications of a teacher, but unless they do they might just as well study for some other occupation. Shall we exclude those who have the qualifications and the education as well, but have never had the advantage of such a course? I answer most emphatically, no. Some of the best teachers and educators of today never hardly saw the inside of a Normal school. Training is good, but in selecting teachers other things must be considered. It would be requiring too much perhaps to expect equal success in every instance, yet in no case has there been a failure. General harmony and good will have prevailed throughout all the schools. The attendance has been very good, and the general interest and advancement very marked. Much of this is due to the parents as well as the teachers, and I feel to thank them for the kindly interest they have shown and the support they have given to the schools. Rome was not built in a day, neither can perfection in our schools be reached at a single bound. Educators are constantly agitating this question, and seeking new ideas and new methods whereby our schools may reach a true standard of proficiency.

EXPENDITURES, ETC.,

As this has been the first year of the town system there will doubtless be a desire to know how the expenditures compare with previous years.

The following comparison will show the expenditures and the number of weeks per district for 1893 and 1894.

Amount expended for schools in 1893, $2562.14.

Average number of weeks per district, 20 4-15.

Amount expended for schools in 1894, $2,236.00.

Average number of weeks per district, 24.

The above comparison shows a saving of $326.14 in expense, and that each district has received nearly four weeks' extra schooling. Schools in Dist's No. 4, 10, 13 and 17 have been postponed as it was thought that there were too few scholars for the profitable maintenance of schools in these districts, and a provision was made for the conveyance of the scholars to other districts. Although there are many who claim that the town system of schools is deficient and the old system is better, yet I think that even they will admit that the past compares favorably with preceding years in every way. While no doubt they have been sincere in their belief, yet I think that they will be among the first to welcome the change as soon as they see it is for the best.

TEXT BOOKS.

In my report last year, I believe I stated the condition of the books in this town as near as I could judge at that time, but I found them even worse than I anticipated. The committee decided that the best way to straighten them out was to collect them together and have them sorted. This was done and over one half of the books were found to be unfit for use or even repairs. On this account over three-fourths of the money appropriated for books had to be expended before the schools could commence, and since that time of course there has been occasional need of other books. In most towns the books are called together once in two or three years and inspected. In this way books that have become loose in the binding or otherwise injured can be bound or repaired before they are too far gone. As such a custom has never been observed in this town, it will be readily seen how the expense has been augmented. If a practice like this could be established in this town it would save lots of extra expense. Such things make extra cost which could be avoided by a little exertion on the part of the officials in charge of these affairs. It was decided that courses of study were desirable in the schools. Acting upon this decision I have prepared grades and established them in the schools with marked success. They stimulate and encourage and have an important part to play in our schools; and I trust that my successor may see it in this light, otherwise this labor has been useless. This has been simply the beginning year, as it were, a bud for future blossoming. The grades are before you upon which criticisms and suggestions are invited for the good of the schools.

HIGH SCHOOL.

Again the High school has been under the instruction of our supervisor. I have tried hard to interest and benefit the scholars, and I feel as though my labors had not been in vain. Further than this, I will say nothing, but will leave it to the citizens who are able to see and judge for themselves.

The High school plays an important part in the education of our scholars and it should receive the strong support of every citizen. The attendance has been steadily on the increase, and I hope the town will spare no pains to make it a profitable and successful school regardless of prejudice and personal feeling.

CONCLUSION.

In conclusion I commend the schools to the wise, generous and active regard of the citizens. In them are germs of all progress in education and civilization. By means of the common school we shall curtail or prevent crime, and do a great deal toward the advancement of morality and good society. There is, it seems to me, a ceaseless demand for the exercise of vigilance and enthusiasm in keeping our schools up to the true standard of proficiency and to the true measure of their duties and opportunities. I hope that vigilance may never slumber, that enthusiasm never abate.

E. P. DYER, Supervisor.
