ieve it On the fa - ces that we meet when passing by. . . . There's a charming lit - tle la - dy, and she side her, While the oth - er flies go buzzing round and round! . . . Oh, these lit - tle lumps of su - gar, they are smiles on you, You think she is your own for - ev - er more; But look out, for she's a sweet, sweet, sweet, But then you know they come so awful high! While you're buzzing round to

"spider" and she's catching lit - tle "flies," While she meets you, smiling sweetly, at the door! find them you will sure - ly lose your wings, Then you'll think about the spi - der and the fly!

✕CHORUS.✕

Tempo di Valse.

"Won't you walk in - to my par - lor," Says the spi - der to the poor lit - tle fly,

"Come and sit down in the par - lor, And don't you be so shy!" "For it is the coz - i - est par - lor," Says the spi - der, with a sweet lit - tle sigh;

Smile, if you may, but you can't get a - way, She's got you, Mas - ter Fly!
